MORE NATIONS
EYE LOANS IN
WORLD'S BANKMONETARY MEETING
OPENED FRIDAY
IN SAVANNAH

By Sterling F. Green
Savannah, Ga., March 8 (P)—The International Monetary Conference opened in flag-decked Savannah today amid indications that several dollar-starved nations might seek loans from the new international bank before this, its brief two-week inaugural session, closes.

High United States delegates said they expected that the Netherlands, France, Czechoslovakia and China, along with one or more Balkan states, might bid for loans shortly after the bank's executive committee is organized next week.

From Latin-American delegations, meanwhile, came hints that the American Republics would fight for equal treatment in borrowing, for the development of industries, along with the war-shattered European nations which need funds for reconstruction.

Peru intends to seek a loan as soon as possible, said former Peruvian Finance Minister Carlos Montero Bernalde.

Warm Welcome Given

The first meeting of the two world economic institutions devised at Bretton Woods—the International Monetary Fund and the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development—opened auspiciously with a tumultuous welcome from thousands of welcoming Savannahians.

Thirty-four member countries will be represented with a 35th, Yugoslavia—a member of both bank and fund—an unaccountable but expected to turn up. Eight countries sent observers.

The Russian delegation, which only yesterday decided definitely to attend the conference in the role of observer, played true to the enigmatic tradition of the Soviet in international affairs. Its leader, Fedor Petrovich Bystron, shrugged away questions on whether Russia now would join the bank and fund which she endorsed at Bretton Woods but failed to ratify.

The first full session of the conference, complete with speech-making, will be held tomorrow morning (11 A.E.S.). Secretary of the Treasury Fred Vinson, American governor for the bank and fund, acting as temporary chairman. A permanent chairman will be named later.

Mother Of 5 Held
In Fatal Shooting
Of Her Husband, 33

Detroit, March 8 (P)—A 32-year-old mother of five children was held for questioning today after her husband was shot fatally in the back on a sidewalk in front of their home.

The victim, John Pash, 33, died a short time after of two pistol shots in the back. He was hit as he walked toward the car of a friend waiting to take him to work.

Detective Lieutenant Leo Doyle of the homicide squad said Mrs. Irene Pash told him she shot her husband of 13 years because he habitually abused her.

The officer said a daughter, Arlene, 9, told them the couple quarreled Thursday night after Pash returned to his home intoxicated. No charge has been placed against Mrs. Pash.

The family, including two girls and three boys aged four to 12, was to have been evicted from their home today for non payment of rent, the officer asserted.

UP HIS DEFENSE

Former Reichs - Marshal
Depicted As Staunch
Peace Emmissary

By Wes Gallagher
Nuernberg, March 8 (P)—Hermann Goering opened his defense against war crimes charges today, leading off for the 22 ranking Nazi defendants, and his first witness sought to portray the former reichs-marshal as an emissary of peace.

Goering often grimaced and nodded his head in apparent efforts to coach his witness, Luftwaffe Gen. Karl Bodensatz, Chief U. S. Prosecutor Robert H. Jackson repeatedly stabbed at Bodensatz' testimony in cross-examination.

When Bodensatz, confidante of Goering, referred to the "suffering" of Hitler and Goering at reports of bomb damage inside Germany, Jackson acidly inquired what reaction they showed at similar reports from Warsaw, Rotterdam and Coventry.

"Warsaw was a fortress in the hands of the Polish army," said Bodensatz, obviously distraught. "Coventry was a place where many airplane parts were manufactured."

Goering nodded approvingly as he did all during the testimony when it met with his satisfaction. When Goering frowned the witness became hesitant and appeared confused by Jackson's questions.

Bodensatz, nervously flexing his bomb-scarred hands which were almost blown off in the 1944 assassination attempt against Hitler, declared Goering had argued for peace from Munich to the eve of the Soviet invasion.

Striking Iron Ore
Miners Hold Out
For 18½ Cent Lift

Duluth, Minn., March 8 (P)—Any settlement of the strike at iron ore mines of northern Minnesota, Wisconsin and Upper Michigan, must be on the same basis as that provided in recent steel contracts, Philip Murray, president of the CIO-United Steelworkers Union, informed district leaders of the union here tonight.

In a telegram to Henry A. Burkhammer, Duluth, district director of the union, Murray said:

"Union policy has been and must continue to be that the strike can be settled only on basis of an 18½ cent an hour wage increase with retroactive pay similar to that provided in steel contracts."

"Iron ore miners in Birmingham, Ala., have already settled on this basis. There can be no question but what iron ore miners in Minnesota, Michigan and Wisconsin will receive this settlement."

Efforts to negotiate a contract to end the strike at mines of the Oliver Iron Mining Co., continued without success here between representatives of the union and management. Negotiations will continue at 11 a. m. CST Monday.

Kalamazoo Justice
Admits Embezzling

Kalamazoo, March 8 (P)—Former Justice of the Peace Gus L. Stein was at liberty under $1,000 bond today after pleading guilty to a charge of embezzlement. He will be sentenced March 16.

Stein admitted that he had issued orders for fuel and other supplies for fictitious persons as a member of the county soldiers' and sailors' relief commission since May 1, 1943.

WHITE HOUSE
THINKS RUSSIA
SET FOR UNOANGLO - AMERICAN
ALLIANCE IDEA
PUT ASIDE

By Douglas B. Cornell
Washington, March 8 (P)—President Truman said today he believes Russia will go along with the United Nations.

He said he will talk when the time comes about the question of an Anglo-American military alliance and whether the British-American combined chiefs of staff should continue their joint planning after the war is officially ended.

Mr. Truman gave reporters at his news conference the impression that he merely was avoiding a commitment on the British points and had no definite plans for considering an alliance or a permanent combined chiefs of staff at some future time.

Collapse Unlikely

In fact, the President said he did not wish to comment at all on Winston Churchill's proposal for a virtual alliance. He disavowed having endorsed, by his mere presence on the same stage, the speech at Fulton, Mo., Tuesday, in which Britain's former prime minister urged a continued, close military link between his own country and the United States.

In answering a barrage of questions on foreign affairs, the chief executive declared firmly that the United Nations would not collapse regardless of the course Russia pursues in Iran.

The United States, in a formal note, has called on Russia to pull all her troops out of Iran immediately in keeping with terms of the Tehran agreement.

When newsmen asked whether he was familiar with how long these top British-American military and naval chiefs intended to continue planning, Mr. Truman said it would be until the war is officially over.

Foreign Relations Aired
The news conference brought from the President these additional points on foreign relations:

1. The question of handing over to Russia the Turkish provinces of Kars and Ardahan did not come up at the big three conference at Potsdam.

2. Another big three meeting in the immediate future is unlikely, but anyone who wants to can come to Washington to see the President.

3. The White House is not commenting on criticism of an American-British-French call for the ousting of the Franco government as dangerous interference in the internal affairs of Spain.

4. Mr. Truman hopes to welcome in person delegates to a meeting of the United Nations security council scheduled to open in New York March 21.

5. The President knows of no plans for Secretary of State Byrnes to retire. John G. Winant, ambassador to London, is home to report and the President guesses it is up to the envoy whether he returns to his diplomatic post.

Gen. George C. Marshall is coming back soon to report on his return to China and then will return to China in his same capacity as a special Presidential envoy.

Communists Enter
Veterans' Affairs,
Rep. Dondoro Says

Washington, March 8 (P)—Rep. Dondoro (R-Mich) said today the Communist party "is steadily infiltrating" into the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Veterans Committee, and other veterans' organizations.

He told the house that a special veterans commission has been established "to supervise this work" and that "its first ambitious project, shrewdly camouflaged, is a new monthly magazine called Salute."

In an analysis of the magazine Salute, Dondoro said the first issue, dated April 1944, "follows the Communist party line to the letter."

Dondoro said that advance publicity announced the publisher of the magazine as "none other than Leverett Gleason, who is also known as Alexander Lev, former business manager of Soviet Russia Today, and connected in a managerial capacity with Communist-line publications: Friday, Scoop, and Readers Scope."

Pauley Withdrawal
In Doubt; He Won't
Give Up Under Fire

Washington, March 8 (P)—The will-he, won't-he merry-go-round on Edwin W. Pauley's withdrawal went round and round today and stopped on the note that he will.

At first Pauley's opponents on the Senate naval committee declared he had backed down on an informal agreement to withdraw as nominee for undersecretary of the navy.

Senator Tobey (R-N. H.) told reporters it was "a grand double-cross—magna cum laude." He added that "never in my experience has such a definite promise been made and reneged upon as was made to me in the last 48 hours."

But later there was a conference of committee members in the office of Chairman Walsh (D-Mass.) which produced reports that the withdrawal agreement was on again.

Before this conference, Pauley, California oil man and former Democratic national treasurer,

SOVIET FORCES
QUIT MANCHURIA

Withdrawal From Vast
Rich Area Believed
Under Way

Chungking, March 8 (P)—The Chinese Central News Agency reported today from Mukden that there were indications the Soviet forces were withdrawing from Manchuria.

The dispatch gave no details. Repeated delays in the withdrawal of Soviet occupation troops from the vast, rich territory have provoked growing criticism in China, culminating last month in a nationwide series of student demonstrations demanding that the Russians get out forthwith.

Chiang Kai-shek found it necessary to reassure the nation of the government's determination to maintain China's sovereignty over Manchuria.

Last Tuesday Foreign Minister Wang Shih-chieh confirmed persistent reports that Russia had made new demands. He said Moscow had suggested that Russia take over Japanese industries in Manchuria as reparations and that the subject was under discussion.

Wang said Russian withdrawal from Manchuria originally was scheduled for last Dec. 3, but was deferred at Chinese request. The last agreed deadline for withdrawal, he said, was Feb. 1. Since then the Russians have attributed further delay to "technical difficulties."

When OPA was reported adopting a "tough price policy" with respect to farm products.

"The same tough policy proposed to be put in force against cotton has had a similar effect upon the price of stocks listed on the various exchanges," Thomas said, adding that analysts blamed "radio statements by responsible officials" for a $4,500,000,000 slump in stock values.

Protesting against what he termed "steps to beat down" existing farm prices, Thomas declared:

"Farmers are the only group in America that have not had a break during the war period."

OPA expires June 30 under existing law. Extension legislation is now before a House committee and may not reach the Senate for several weeks.

Peron Supporters
Win In Argentina

Buenos Aires, March 8 (P)—Col. Juan Peron whose election to the Argentine presidency over Dr. Jose Tamborini seems assured will have a congress dominated by his supporters and friendly governors in half or more of Argentina's 14 provinces, political observers said tonight.

Peron has 232 indicated electoral votes to 23 for Tamborini, with a final electoral college vote of 189 necessary to win the presidency. Elections will be held Sunday in Buenos Aires and Tucuman provinces where some ballot frauds were found during the regular voting on Feb. 24.

In districts where the count has been completed, Peron supporters have won a majority of seats at stake in both houses of congress.

SMITH GETS URGE
Chicago, March 8 (P)—The Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, head of the American First party, said today he was being urged by some Michigan residents to oppose Sen. Arthur Vandenberg in the Republican primary election. He said he would give his answer within the next ten days.

SCHOOL GETS SCROLL
Ann Arbor, Mich., March 8 (P)—Appreciation for the work of the University of Michigan's school of dentistry in training officer candidates for the Naval Reserve Dental Corps is expressed in a scroll, signed by the Secretary of the Navy, which will be presented to the school Tuesday.

DELAY IN PAY
DISPUTES HIT
BY PRESIDENTFACT-FINDER BOARD
NAMED TO TAKE UP
RAILWAY WAGES

Washington, March 8, (P)—President Truman lashed out today at what he called ballyhoo by both sides in some of the continuing labor disputes.

His comment was the more emphatic in that it came in a volunteer statement at his news conference rather than in response to questions.

Mr. Truman named no names. But reporters thought it obvious that he referred to the General Motors strike, for one, for the first question asked him was whether he would intervene in that dispute. The chief executive said firmly that he will not intervene.

The President began by announcing a fact-finding board for the railroad wage dispute—former Associate Justice Leif Erickson of the Montana supreme court, Frank M. Swacker, New York lawyer, and Gordon S. Watkins of the economics department of the University of California. This will put off for 30 to 60 days the walkout called for Monday by the Brotherhoods of Engineers and Trainmen.

Bargaining Gets Results
Then Mr. Truman said he wanted to call attention to two strike settlements—those in the rubber and the telephone industries.

They were settled strictly by collective bargaining, he remarked, without any ballyhoo or unnecessary conversation.

There have been hundreds of similar cases, he went on, but no notice has been taken of them.

After discussing the General Motors strike, and expressing the view that it should be settled for the 19½ cent hourly wage increase which his fact-finding board recommended, Mr. Truman was asked about the steel fabricators.

The President emphasized that his recent statement did not constitute any administration commitment, either to the fabricators or the union. The statement was that the steel settlement for an 18½ cent hourly wage increase applied only to basic steel producers.

NO WEEK-END RECESS
Detroit, March 8, (P)—General Motors corporation and the CIO United Auto Workers held another fruitless negotiating session today as President Truman said in Washington he would not intervene in the costly 108-day-old strike.

"We didn't make any progress today, but we started out once more on discussion of the things in dispute," declared Federal Mediator James F. Dewey as he emerged from an hour-long meeting with company and union officials.

Upsetting predictions they would recess for the week-end, the negotiators scheduled another session Saturday (10:30 a. m.) and Harry B. Coen, GM director of labor relations, declared, "We have to work straight through on this one."

Dewey, who arrived here this afternoon by plane from Pittsburgh, parried questions on his Thursday meeting with Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach at Washington.

ELK ACTIVITIES WIDE IN SCOPE

—Escanaba Ruler Sums Up Activities For 78th Anniversary—

N. T. Stephenson, Exalted Ruler of Escanaba Lodge 354, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, has disclosed some surprising facts and figures covering the magnificent work done by the order since its founding.

On February 16, 1946, all of the 422 Elks lodges throughout the United States observed the 78th anniversary of the founding of the order, led by New York Lodge No. 1, always referred to as the Mother Lodge.

Started in 1868 by a handful of disheartened New York actors, "to promote the well-being of their fellow man," the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks has become a vast, nationwide welfare organization of more than 750,000 members, a 200,000 increase in Pearl Harbor. It has no commercial or religious angles and no interest in politics.

Spent Over $8,500,000 The Elks' War Commission, under the chairmanship of Past Grand Exalted Ruler James R. Nicholson, of New York City, and the 1422 subordinate Elks lodges throughout the country have spent prodigious effort and more than $8,500,000 in cash to perform 14 definite and vital jobs for our armed forces during World War II. Since the founding of the order, the Elks have contributed more than $70,000,000 to the public welfare. In hundreds of American towns and cities the Elks' clubhouse is the center of the town's social activity.

In an intensified program of rehabilitation which will be continued indefinitely wherever servicemen are hospitalized, the Elks are bringing cheer and comfort to the sick and wounded in more than 300 hospitals in 42 states. The needs and their fulfillment vary but the main features usually are entertainments and shows, refreshments, radio sets, phonographs, musical instruments, bed slippers (150,000 pairs to date), cigarettes, books, letter writing, Christmas packages, day-long fishing trips, scenic tours and other timely diversions. The entire membership has now become engaged in a country-wide campaign to help returning veterans in the present housing crisis.

A million books for the Merchant Marine, the recruitment of thousands of Navy Seabees, Army Engineers, Air Cadets and Nurses, and the rehabilitation of 450 Japanese prisoners of war in the Philippines and Guam have been helped by other Elks war benevolences.

Helps Find Jobs The Elks have had 80,000 members in the armed forces and every Elks lodge is busy rehabilitating and finding jobs for these Elks veterans who need such help. The Elks have served all U. S. and Allied service personnel in the U. S. with entertainment, food and lodging through 155 Fraternal Centers near military establishments in 37 states. Every Elks lodge in the country maintains open house at all times for the U. S. and Allied armed forces. Hundreds of intelligent young boys and girls have won Elks scholarships in the country's various universities.

The administrative office of the Grand Secretary of the order is located in the huge Elks Memorial building in Chicago. The Elks National Foundation, under the chairmanship of Past Grand Exalted Ruler John F. Malley, of Boston, is engaged in creating a fund of $20,000,000 for new forms of welfare and educational work. The order maintains the large club-like Elks National Home at Bedford, Va., where more than 500 aged and indigent Elks can spend their declining years in peace and comfort.

High on the list of innumerable good works are the activities on behalf of crippled children engaged in by state and local Elks groups. Through this activity, Elks lodges in Florida contributed heavily, during 1945, to the Harry Anna Home for Crippled Children; in Georgia, to "Aldmore"; in New Jersey, to the Betty Bachrach Home for Afflicted Children, and in Vermont, to the Goshen Fresh Air Camp for Crippled Children. Lodges in many sections of the country maintain a visiting nurse service, primarily for the detection and treatment of polio cases, as well as a clinic at which children are examined free and the cost of medical care and hospitalization provided when circumstances warrant. Supplementing all these activities, Elks lodges have donated "iron lungs" and other medical facilities to hospitals throughout the country.

Welfare Work Supported

Added to this work among crippled children are donations for the upkeep of other institutions. The Foundation with the aid of and through the Minnesota State Elks Association supports a great deal of welfare work in the Mayo Clinic in Rochester. The Children's Home in Hendersonville, N. C. is aided through the North Carolina State Elks Association and the tubercular hospital at Tucson, Arizona, through the Arizona State Elks Association.

Besides carrying on medical and welfare work, the lodges and the Foundation award scholarships to deserving students who otherwise could not be able to attend college and the Foundation offers $5,000 in prizes to the nation's "Most Valuable Student Contest."

Another educational activity of the Foundation, which was instituted during the war, is the Emergency Educational Fund. Established in August, 1944, at a Grand Lodge session by suggestion of Past Grand Exalted Ruler Robert S. Barrett of Alexandria, Virginia, the purpose of this fund is to assist children of Elks killed or incapacitated during the war.

Recruitment of Seabees was a signal accomplishment in that the Elks were the only organization called upon for assistance by the Navy and were instrumental in recruiting 60,000 construction men far in advance of schedule.

At present the Elks are continuing a successful drive to recruit nurses for Veterans' Administration hospitals.

One of the projects scheduled for the immediate future is the rebuilding of the Manila and Guam lodges, which were completely destroyed during the Japanese occupation of the Philippines and Guam. The war commission has already spent $100,000 in repairing interned members of these lodges and will render further assistance in the reconstruction of the buildings.

Fund For Rehabilitation The latest activity, brought on through the transition from war to peace, is the establishment of veterans' rehabilitation committees in all lodges to render assistance and advice to veterans seeking employment, housing or loans. Funds, similar to the one through which the Elks made loans totaling $700,000 to 40,000 veterans of World War I without collateral, have been set aside by individual lodges for distribution through these committees.

Wade H. Kenner, a well-known businessman of Wheeling, W. Va., is the Grand Exalted Ruler of the Elks and, like his predecessors, is spending his year in office visiting the subordinate lodges throughout the nation.

President Truman is an Elk, a long-time member of Kansas City, Mo., Lodge No. 26. Franklin D. Roosevelt was an Elk. Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson is a member of Albuquerque, N. M., Lodge No. 461; Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach belongs to Ballard, Wash., Lodge No. 827; Attorney General Tom C. Clark is a member of Dallas, Tex., Lodge No. 71.

Elkdom includes in its membership 49 U. S. senators, 203 representatives and the governors of 33 states. Admiral Ernest J. King belongs to Loraine, Ohio, Lodge No. 1301, and General John J. Pershing answers to the roll call in El Paso, Tex., Lodge No. 187.

Relief of crippled children is a major organized activity of the Elks lodges throughout the country as are the providing of the poor with Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets, providing and equipping playgrounds and summer camps and scores of other benevolent acts. It is not to be wondered at that "BPOE" is frequently paraphrased as "Best People on Earth."

ARMY TO WFFD OUT AGITATORS

Men Who Lack Loyalty Get No 'Sensitive' Assignments

Washington, March 8 (P)—The war department announced a policy revision today which makes commanding generals responsible for seeing that "sensitive military positions" are not held by "personnel who lack loyalty to the government and constitution of the United States."

If upheld, in effect, the authority of General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters to remove two staff members of the Pacific edition of the Stars and Stripes.

The definition of "sensitive duties" includes "attendance at officer candidate schools," "aviation cadet training," "duties in connection with radar or atomic energy," and "duties in connection with information, education or orientation of troops," among others.

The Stars and Stripes is published overseas under the war department's information and education division.

Sgt. Kenneth L. Pettus, of Chicago, managing editor, and Cpl. Bernard D. Reyben, Waterbury, Conn., columnist, were ordered transferred from the Pacific Stars and Stripes staff last week with the explanation that each had been a Communist and had "at times flavored his public writings with Communist thought."

Pettus denied he had ever been a Communist. Reyben said he had resigned from the party before induction.

Shirts And Shorts To Go Up In Price

Washington, March 8 (P)—The government tonight authorized higher prices for cotton textiles in a move designed to increase production of scarce clothing.

OPA said the upward adjustments for textile mills will mean higher retail prices for shirts, shorts and pajamas, dresses and work clothing.

The agency announced no new retail prices but an OPA spokesman said the cost of shirts and dresses probably will go up 10 to 15 cents. Retail prices for shorts will be increased seven or eight cents, he added.

In a companion move, the Civilian Production Administration ordered mill operators to shift a large number of looms to production of fabrics required for inexpensive garments.

Estimates Raised For Naval Budget

Washington, March 8 (P)—Raising the sights on his estimates of January, President Truman asked Congress today to give the Navy $4,600,000,000 for the fiscal year, starting July 1.

The budget includes $275,000,000 for new planes to be delivered in 1948 and $227,000,000 to keep research and development at about its present level.

It calls for 500,000 enlisted men in the Navy and 100,000 men in the Marine Corps, on the average over the year.

BUS CUSTOMER PAYS Detroit, March 8 (P)—New Year's finale: The Detroit Street Railways system said today a $154 check had been received for William J. Dart's celebration aboard chartered buses in welcome of 1946.

Dart, accepting the DSR's public invitation to charter a bus, wore out four drivers and forced the company to call it quits.

DELAY IN PAY DISPUTES HIT BY PRESIDENT

In Washington Labor Secretary Schweikert, studying a voluminous report from Dewey, told newsmen he expected to "come to a conclusion" today as to what ought to be done in the GM-UAW stalemate.

Dewey found the union adamant in its demand for a wage rate increase of 19½ cents an hour and GM equally immovable in its determination to go no higher than an 18½ cent increase.

Other issues remaining to be settled include: vacation pay, promotions only a seniority basis, union demands for maintenance of membership and management creation of a wage "equalization" fund. The latter, union spokesmen said, would be used to equalize what they termed wage inequities in certain areas for identical types of work.

Hopes that GM President C. E. Wilson soon might return to the negotiations vanished today with disclosure of his plans to leave immediately for a vacation in Mexico City. A statement ailing forced Wilson to withdraw from the conferences last week.

In addition to excessive tire wear, wheels that are out of line make for difficult driving.

Guided Missile War Menace In 1950 Is Foreseen By Eaker

Detroit, March 8 (P)—The United States faces the possibility of being attacked in 1950 by guided bombs and rocket projectiles traveling 3,000 to 5,000 miles an hour with 10 to 20 tons of explosives, Lt. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, deputy commander of the Army Air Forces, said here today.

Such missiles, Eaker declared, would be aimed at American industrial centers, which he listed as the first objective of enemy strategy.

To offset the menace of another war, the general continued, "we must have professional diplomacy which would bring the best brains of the nation into that service. We must have a central intelligence agency. We must have a force in being ready to move within the hour."

Plants develop faster when they aren't feeling well, according to experiments by experts.

Girl Friend's Tip Captures Escaped Convict At Detroit

Detroit, March 8 (P)—Claude Bolen, 29, prison inmate who escaped from the University hospital in Ann Arbor Wednesday, was apprehended here Friday on a tip from a girl friend.

Police arrested him as he stepped out of a stolen car belonging to Dr. Bruce Fralick, of Ann Arbor, on his way to keep a "date" with the girl.

Bolen, who is serving from 15 to 25 years at Michigan Southern Prison, Jackson, for robbery armed, fled from the hospital wearing a leg brace and using crutches. Ann Arbor police later found the crutches a few feet from the spot where Dr. Fralick's car was stolen. Bolen was suffering from injuries received last summer in an attempted escape from the prison at Jackson. At that time he fractured both heels when he fell over a prison wall.

First trace of Bolen was found Thursday in Detroit when police located license plates belonging to Dr. Fralick on another car in a local parking lot.

There are more than 600 private aeronautical lights supplementing the assistance rendered to airmen by beacon lights of the federal airways system.

MARY M. BARTEL DIES SUDDENLY

Delta Hardware Clerk For 31 Years Ill Only Three Days

Mary M. Bartel, 306 North 19th street, died at St. Francis hospital at 10:10 p. m. Friday after an illness of only three days. She was born March 23, 1894, in Escanaba, and graduated from St. Joseph's high school in 1912. She studied two years at Green Bay Business college, and in 1914 entered the employ of the Delta Hardware Co., where she was a remittance clerk for 31 years.

Survivors include her mother, Mrs. Anna Bartel; a sister, Mrs. Catherine Vargo, Gladstone; and a brother, John Bartel of Escanaba.

The body was taken to the Boyce funeral home, where arrangements for burial rites will be completed today.

Ceilings On Meat Raised To Offset New Pay Increase

Washington, March 8 (P)—The OPA tonight announced specific higher wholesale price ceilings for meat to offset wage increases granted to packing house workers. The new ceilings are effective next Monday. Higher retail prices will be announced "in the near future," OPA said.

OPA has estimated that the public will have to pay about 1½ per cent more for meat as a result of wage boost of 16 cents an hour.

The higher prices for packers, OPA has stated, will average for the industry as a whole at least 45 cents per 100 pounds of beef and veal and about 50 cents for lamb and 55 cents for pork.

Wholesale ceilings on sales to the government are increased an additional 25 cents per 100 pounds on beef, veal, lamb and certain pork cuts.

Fr. Gerard Berry Suffers Stroke

Rev. Fr. Gerard Berry, C. P., who left Escanaba last Monday after preaching a mission at St. Ann church, suffered a slight stroke on Tuesday at the Passionist Retreat in Chicago. He was on his way to preach a mission in Alabama. Fr. Berry's condition is reported as uncertain.

SEEKING DATA ON INDUSTRY

Bureau Asks Localities To Supply Survey Findings

Marquette—Requiring the co-operation of all cities, villages and possibly counties which desire to be considered as locations for industry, the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau has launched a program to compile under one cover industrial surveys of as many localities in the Peninsula as possible.

At a recent meeting here, the Bureau's executive committee voted to gather information regarding resource materials, public utilities, labor conditions, transportation service, power and power rates, housing and other factors and to make such data readily available to industries seeking new locations. Through compilation of surveys, it is hoped to attract small industries to help promote the economic stability of Upper Michigan.

An original proposed plan to hire an industrial engineer to make a Peninsula-wide survey was rejected as being too expensive and unnecessary.

A four-point plan, adopted by the Bureau committee follows:

1. The Development Bureau will develop a complete and practical industrial prospectus for one Peninsula town, wherein the data obtained covers all aspects of information such as industry might desire.

2. The Bureau will obtain engineering advice and counsel to the end that such prospectus or type survey will be complete in its coverage.

3. The Bureau will duplicate this "ideal prospectus" and make it available to each town, city, village or county board in the Peninsula as a pattern that might be followed in making the desired industrial compilations for each community.

4. If and when local community surveys throughout the Peninsula are made and available in printed form, the Development Bureau will print a folder for general distribution which will carry general industrial information on the Peninsula and will list the places where city, village or community surveys can be obtained.

Experts Tell Why Water Has Taste

Marquette—Two experts on water supply and purification, sent here by the Wallace and Tiernan company, of Newark, N. J., in response to a request by Mayor James J. Beckman and the city commission for aid and information concerning operation of the breakpoint chlorination system, packed their test tubes and paraphernalia yesterday after completing their mission.

The experts were A. E. Griffin, of Newark, technical service director of the firm, which supplied the new chlorination system here, and L. J. Beckman, Chicago, assistant district manager.

They left with the water department and city commissioners some conclusions and recommendations. The latter, it is expected, will result in improvement in the "water taste" situation, at least to the extent that frequency and intensity of the "bad spells" will lessen.

Chlorine Not To Blame

It appears, after observing the technicians at their work and listening in to their conversations with water plant employees and city officials, that Marquette has some special problems to contend with that don't always come up to plague municipalities using the breakpoint system.

What Mr. Householder tastes in his tap water is not the result of excessive chlorine. After the breakpoint has been reached in treating city water, the chlorine itself is tasteless. What brings out the dark brown taste is, the technicians said, minute quantities of phenol compounds included in the waste materials dumped into Lake

New Sugar Stamp Valid On Monday

James Anderson, chief clerk of the price control office here announced yesterday that a little more sugar will be given housewives for canning this year than last season.

OPA in Washington has announced that spare stamp No. 9 will become valid next Monday, March 11, for five pounds of sugar. It will be good through Oct. 31.

The agency also stated that it expects to validate another home canning stamp in June or July.

Hospital

Mrs. Albert Boucher, 711 South Tenth street, is a surgical patient at St. Francis hospital. No visitors will be allowed for a few days.

Jack Courneene, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Courneene, 1031 Stephenson avenue, submitted to an appendectomy yesterday morning at St. Francis hospital. No visitors are permitted.

Mrs. H. R. Knaus who submitted to an appendectomy on Tuesday at St. Francis hospital, is recovering satisfactorily and is now permitted visitors.

Return Youths On Car Theft Charge

Sheriff William E. Miron and State Trooper Mason Meyer yesterday left for Chicago to return Donald Mackie, 15, of Kipling, and Robert Willis, 16, of Gladstone, to Escanaba for arraignment on a car theft charge. The youths were arrested by Chicago police.

Officers said they will request juvenile court to waive jurisdiction so the boys may be arraigned in justice court to determine whether they will be bound to circuit court for trial. Both boys have spent time in the vocational school at Lansing.

day from a two weeks visit in Detroit.

Mrs. Emma Bouty is spending a week in Escanaba with relatives. Mrs. Ed. Krause of Hardwood visited with Mrs. Gus Collard for a few hours Friday.

Birthday Party

Mrs. Tim Loeffler entertained a group of friends and neighbors at her home Tuesday upon the occasion of a birthday anniversary. A 12:30 dinner was served. Card games followed for several hours with prizes awarded to Mrs. F. X. Labre, 1st; Miss Elizabeth Shannon, 2nd; Mrs. Wm. Grau, 3rd. Mrs. Karl Behrend was awarded guest prize. Mrs. Loeffler was the recipient of gift from the group.

Miss Shirley Frazen of Flint, is visiting at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Frazen for a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Osier visited with relatives in Iron Mountain Sunday.

Odd Accident

Kenneth, nine year old son of Superintendent and Mrs. Paul Akins, was found in a serious condition from choking, as a result of his head being caught in the straps of a baby's swing at the Akins home last Saturday shortly before noon. The boy said he wanted to show the baby some tricks on the swing. A doctor was called to revive the child after artificial respiration, given by Mrs. Akins failed. Kenneth did not suffer any after effects and was back in school on Monday.

Birthday Party

Mrs. Wm. Grau entertained the Birthday club at her home Saturday. Dinner was served at one o'clock, followed by several games of cards. Prizes were given to Mrs. Roy Harris, 1st; Mrs. Tim Loeffler, 2nd; Mrs. Theo. Frazen, 3rd. Door prize was given to Mrs. Roy Harris. Mrs. Grau was presented with a gift.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Labre, son Billy, of Neenah-Menasha, spent week end at the home of the former's parents Mr. and Mrs. F. X. Labre.

Miss Bertha Hartwig, R. N., of Milwaukee, is visiting at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Amanda Adams.

Judge Graass Killed In Automobile Mishap

JUDGE HENRY GRAASS

Circuit Judge Henry Graass and E. R. McKenzie, 35, court reporter, both of Green Bay, Wis., were killed instantly 9 o'clock yesterday morning in an automobile accident three miles north of Madison.

Judge Graass and McKenzie were enroute to Madison to attend a committee meeting of the Wisconsin Circuit Judges association when their automobile skidded on the pavement and rammed into another automobile, driven by Andrew Bailey of Madison.

Judge Graass was well known in Escanaba, having addressed the service clubs here on several occasions. He was active in the Izaak Walton League and Boy Scout work. He maintained a boys camp on Moonlight bay, north of Sturgeon Bay, on the Door peninsula. Judge Graass held high offices in the national Izaak Walton league.

Takes Eight Shots To Kill Tough Lion

Johannesburg (AP)—It took four men and eight shots to kill a ten-foot lion that had been creating havoc among cattle in Northern Rhodesia.

J. Valentine spotted the lion busy with a kill just before sunset. His first shot missed and he fired a second one but only wounded the animal. The next day he set out with three friends to track it down. The lion suddenly charged from the bush and all four men fired at once.

The beast fell almost at Valentine's feet, and he put another shot into it. As he jumped back to reload, the dying animal sprang forward and clawed the legs of another member of the party just as he, too, fired into its body. The two other members of the party ran up and put two more final shots into one of the toughest lions on record.

Lucia Tobins' birthday anniversary was celebrated at the meeting. The girls played cards and enjoyed. Later in the evening they enjoyed a delicious birthday supper, served by candle light. A lovely blue and white cake centered the table. Lucia was presented with many lovely gifts.

Attending were Wilma LeBrasseur, Joyce Todish, Margaret Blowers, Frances Sefcik, Beatrice Turk, Jean Thibault, Lucia Tobin and Doris Moore.

The club will hold their next meeting at the Menary home with Miss Audrey Menary as hostess.

Personal

Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Warner and Miss Lorraine Turk left on Thursday for Spirit Lake, Ia. where they will visit with relatives. They expect to be gone for a week.

Mrs. Clarence Menary is spending two weeks in Chicago visiting with her daughter Eloda, and Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Menary.

Mr. Lloyd Camps is at home following an appendectomy at the St. Francis Hospital at Escanaba.

Mrs. Lloyd Camps, daughter Nancy and Loretta Sherlock spent the week end at the Ben Shandona home in Escanaba.

Mrs. Lou Geelan of Hartell, Ala., in Canada is spending several days this week visiting with relatives and friends.

Mrs. William Mercer submitted to a major operation at St. Francis Hospital on Wednesday.

Miss Marcella Camps of Stambaugh was a recent visitor at the Lloyd Camps home.

Mrs. Harry Smith returned to her home this week from the Belin Memorial Hospital in Green Bay. Her condition is very good.

Charles Camps A. S. of the U. S. Navy who is receiving his boot training at Bainbridge, Md., was hospitalized for two weeks receiving treatment for foot infection. He is now back on duty.

He plans on returning to school in the fall to complete his studies at Michigan State college.

JOB TRAINING TO BE GIVEN

Many U. P. Communities Will Establish Schools

Marquette—With early returns from 100 questionnaires sent operators of hotels, cafes, resorts and summer hotels last week indicating there is a large demand for employees during the summer tourist trade, plans for setting up short-course training schools are being made by the Northern Michigan College of Education in co-operation with Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, state board of vocational education and Michigan State College.

J. Milton Gustafson, of the commercial department of Northern

Shore Drive, Gladstone; PM 1/c Elot Arnold Kinnie, 424 Minneapolis Ave., Gladstone; T/5 Bertum Joseph Doutree, 603 South Tenth St., Escanaba; T/5 Bernard Joseph Bougie, 1119 First Ave. S., Escanaba.

Cpl. Ronald Henry Olsen, 317 North 14th St., Escanaba; Cpl. Romeo T. Miron, Nahma; T/5 Daniel W. Weissert, Rt. 1, Escanaba; TM 2/c Charles Louis Brandt, 614 South 18th St., Escanaba; T/5 Wilbert Joseph Demusse, Perkins; Cpl. Ronald E. Messier, 1223 Sheridan Rd., Escanaba; S/1 John Edwards Shannan, 330 South 16th St., Escanaba; R 3/c Ronald Frederick Kikbusch, Rt. 1, Cornell; Pfc. Robert Lawrence Sandstrom, Gladstone; Sgt. Lowell F. Girard, 1607 Michigan Ave., Gladstone.

The Development Bureau, which will serve as a clearing house for such information, plans to make known the names of all persons who enroll in these short course training schools and make satisfactory progress to all resort operators looking for employees. In such manner, labor employment opportunities throughout the Peninsula will be available to graduates of these schools.

Cpl. James A. L'Heureux, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L'Heureux, 611 South 15th street, received his discharge from the army on Tuesday, March 5 and has returned home. He was in the service for 34 months spending two years in the European theatre of operations. He left Belgium Feb. 19 and arrived in the U. S. at New York City on Feb. 28. Cpl. L'Heureux wears the ETO ribbon with one battle star, the American defense, good conduct and victory ribbons. He plans on returning to school in the fall to complete his studies at Michigan State college.

Michigan College, will visit several cities in the Peninsula this week and next, meeting local committees to lay plans for the schools which will be conducted during April and May. This week Gustafson will be in Munising at 1:15 Friday afternoon, in Newberry at 2:30 on the same day, in Sault Ste. Marie at 10:00 Saturday morning and in Manistique at 2:30 Saturday afternoon. His itinerary for next week has not been announced, but it will include Ironwood, Houghton, Iron River and several communities.

The job training course, of four or five days' duration, will be open to young persons who are looking forward to employment in hotels, resorts or cafes. The survey, in the form of a questionnaire prepared and distributed by the Development Bureau, is showing the employment need in the resort field and is being used as a basis for encouragement of enrollment in these schools.

The first five answers to the questionnaire, received from resort and hotel operators in Crystal Falls, Ontonagon, Land O'Lakes, AuTrain and Marenisco, show there is need for 42 employees in those five resorts alone. Using that as a criterion, a large number of jobs are available for young people in the tourist industry. The types of employees sought include waitresses, maids, housekeepers, dishwashers, cooks, front office help, bartenders and laundresses.

The Development Bureau, which will serve as a clearing house for such information, plans to make known the names of all persons who enroll in these short course training schools and make satisfactory progress to all resort operators looking for employees. In such manner, labor employment opportunities throughout the Peninsula will be available to graduates of these schools.

Program for Housing

THE administration's housing bill was given some rough treatment in the House of Representatives but the measure as finally passed by the house possesses the basic requirements for a successful housing program.

The two administration-sponsored provisions which were culled from the measure, one providing for $600,000,000 in subsidies and the other for price ceilings on existing homes, are not quite as essential to the housing program as administration leaders contend.

As a substitute for the subsidy to producers of building materials to increase supplies, it will be necessary to raise price ceilings on these materials, but this only serves to put the increased cost on the home builder, where it belongs anyway.

Conceding that prices on old homes have risen sharply, it must also be recognized that the strongest factor against skyrocketing prices on old homes is a vigorous housing program. Home purchasers are going to think twice about paying more money for an old house than it would cost them to build a new one.

The really important provisions of a home building program still are contained in the measure adopted by the house. They include an adequate increase in government-insured home mortgages, the channeling of scarce building materials to low-cost homes, preference for veterans in home construction, price ceilings on new homes which, in turn, serve to keep prices on old homes pretty much in line, authority to raise prices on building materials when necessary, and authority to control export of lumber needed for home construction in this country.

They All Add Up

ANY one of Escanaba's new industries may not be so impressive as far as employment figures go, but in the aggregate they mean considerable to Escanaba.

A cursory check-up of the new industries, most of which located here directly as a result of the industrial promotion efforts of the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce and the City of Escanaba, reveals that they together employ more than three hundred persons.

Leading the list just now is the Fence Company of America with 100 employed. The Dearfree company employs 90; Venus, 70; Delta Furniture company, 25; and Solar Furniture company, 30. All of these concerns expect to increase their crews as soon as raw materials become available in large amounts.

In addition, there is the small plant of the Insulation Manufacturers Corporation, which employs several men. Another small industry, started by Foy Arbour, discharged World War II service man, is making lawn furniture and toys. Having recently obtain a tie-up with national sales agency, Arbour plans to expand his operations.

Escanaba's old stand-by industries, like the Escanaba Paper company, Shepek Dimension company, and Birds-Eye Veneer company, still furnish the bulk of the industrial employment in this community. The new industries, however, give a diversification to our industrial economy that makes for a stable community.

2500 Men Discharged

THE report of the Delta county draft board disclosing that 2500 Delta county servicemen have been discharged from the armed forces out of a total of approximately 4,000 men who enlisted or were drafted from this county indicates that we are well past the peak of army and navy demobilization.

There still are about 1400 Delta county men still in service. In addition more than 100, or in excess of 2 1-2 per cent of the total, were killed in action or died in service.

The rate of discharges will inevitably dwindle in the months ahead. The group still in service includes a number of men inducted within the last year who presumably will be retained in service for the legal limit provided for in the Selective Service act, which is six months after the war has been officially declared ended. This declaration marking the end of the war will have to be made by Congress.

In the meanwhile, the draft procedure continues at least until mid-May, when the present Selective Service authority expires. It still is not too late to revise the military organizations with the thought of injecting a sense of democracy into the army and navy that does not now exist. Only in this way can we hope to attain our essential military requirements by voluntary enlistments.

Picnic Areas Needed

WITH the postwar tourist rush in the offing, camp and picnic areas maintained by the Forest Service in the national forests will again assume importance in outdoors recreation.

During the war, these areas received only light use and only routine maintenance. Most of them need improvements, and it is for this reason that the department of agriculture asked Congress for an increase of $458,768 for the 1947 fiscal year. This year's appropriation was $212,723, which is not much when it is considered that the money must be distributed over 165 national forests in the United States and the territories. However, the Bureau of the Budget fixed the appropriation at $312,723 but this was reduced by the House committee to $262,000.

An effort is being made to restore the $50,000 deleted by the House committee when the appropriation comes up for consideration by the Senate committee. The Upper Peninsula should display an interest in this matter for there are three national forests within its boundaries and the improvements to be made on the picnic spots and other recreational areas are an important factor in the over-all program for bringing more tourists to this region.

A FRIEND IN NEED
(Toledo Blade)

Your Best Friends," wrote Noble Oyanagi, an American-born Japanese schoolboy, in the prize essay of Brotherhood Week, "are the ones who do not desert the ship whenever you are in a serious predicament."

Young Oyanagi was in a serious predicament "the most gloomy, dismal day" he ever experienced. Along with other Nisei, he was being moved from his home on the West Coast to an interior relocation camp in the early months of the war—which meant that he was leaving his friends, his school, his familiar haunts, everything he had known in his young life. His ship was just about sinking.

But "as we worked in our home preparing to leave, in popped one of our dearest friends—Callahan by name, an Irishman if there ever was one, and incidentally the Scoutmaster of our troop. He took time off from his work just to take us down to the depot in his car.

"When we arrived at the depot, I had another surprise when I met all my buddies there. They had all played hockey from school just to see us off.

"As I looked out of the window, I let my eyes roam over the crowd to have a last look. Among them were chums of every nationality—Eric Liljas, a blond Swede; Bobby Feldman, a Jewish pal; the entire Wing family, who, although their homeland was ravished by the Japanese, had no hard feelings toward us."

There was more to the prize-winning essay than that, but that is enough to show why it won the prize. An Irishman, a Swede, a Jew and a Chinese family went down to the depot to see a Japanese boy off to a relocation camp—and to prove that they were all good Americans.

The New Zealand cabinet announced big increases in motor vehicle importation from Britain but only a thin line from America.

Here you have a fleeting but precise picture of why we have empires. There is profit in them. That is all.

The people of New Zealand have strong sentimental ties to Britain. Those ties are natural. But London sees to it that they are well nourished, too. Business arises through those ties. That is legitimate business. Britain is entitled to that business. No one in America should ever object to it.

But in the New Zealand news item will be observed the confession that those ancient ties of blood and friendship are not enough to satisfy the empires these days. The government steps in and says to the New Zealander who may crave an American made car: "You just can't have it."

The power to control all this immense trade that is drained from half the people on the earth, uncultured and uncivilized as many of them may be, is the reason and the only reason for empire. Strike down that reason and Holland, France, Britain and all the others would quit their colonies. They are there solely for the gain that is in it. And they secure that profit ordinarily through means that are unfair, deceptive and oppressive.

There will be no enduring peace in the world until this mighty injustice is corrected, until business goes where business wants to go, until a billion people now restrained and forbidden the primary freedom of choice are permitted without fear or penalty to follow and satisfy their natural and legitimate wishes.

WHAT'S THE ORIGIN?
(Scrapbook Item)

Fort Wayne: My English class and I will be grateful for a discussion of the pronunciation and origin of the word "Maneuver."—B. L.

Answer: The customary American pronunciation is: muh-NOO-ver. Less frequently: muh-NYOO-ver.

In modern usage, this word suggests directed movement, as the field maneuvers of an army, the skillful maneuver of chessmen, the adroit management of a political campaign.

The original word, however, had a far more restricted meaning: the Latin maneuver, from manus, "hand," plus opera, "work," hence, handiwork, working with the hand. Manuopera entered French as manoeuvre, which is the present spelling in British English. In American the spelling is: maneuver.

By a strange quirk sometime before Shakespeare's day, the word manoeuvre lost some of its letters thus: man-u-re and

World Events Analyzed

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

Washington—Winston Churchill's Missouri speech was like a good, rich Christmas pudding of the days before austerity and shortages. There was something in it for everyone.

It ended with a plea for an understanding with Soviet Russia through the United Nations. You could put that kind of an interpretation on it if you were of a mind to.

But throughout the world, the emphasis undoubtedly will be on the strong anti-Russian bias which ran through the body of the speech. The other—the pious conclusion—had too much the sound of an afterthought.

The way in which history repeats itself is startling. There were sentences in Churchill's address which might almost have been lifted out of the flaming speeches he made after World War I.

True, in their tone toward Russia they were somewhat milder. In 1919, Churchill was an ardent crusader bent on putting down Communism in USSR. He was for using the armed might of the Allies to smash the Bolshevik revolution. And he said so over and over again with all the weight of his very great eloquence.

Through the '20s one of his favorite themes in his writing and his speech-making was the menace to the world of the Red revolution disseminated by Moscow. He never lost an opportunity to refer to the Bolshevik leaders as murderers and ministers of hell.

Quite naturally, this did nothing to bring Russia and Western Europe closer together. Churchill's long-drawn-out eloquence may have helped to inspire some of history's colleagues who later were to cherish the dream that Germany could be turned against Russia to destroy Bolshevism. Highly placed Tories continued to nurse that hope long after Hitler had built up his Barbarous Legions for the conquest of Europe.

—SAW HITLER MENACE—

Churchill, it should be added, was never one of these. He was one of the first to see what the menace of Hitlerism meant. But we now find the great wartime leader linking Communism with "Neo-Fascism" and talking of the danger to Christian Civilization of Communist Fifth Columns.

What Churchill would set against this threat, if you reduce his speech to its simplest terms, is an alliance between the United States and the British Commonwealth. There would be a complete interchange on the military level and perhaps on other levels.

Granted that Churchill is sincere in his desire to have peace with Russia, his speech as read in the Kremlin might well seem to be a challenge. It might well be read as a documentation of Stalin's recent speech, in which he told his people that the USSR had to be strong because other nations had designs on her security.

Churchill's speech, it seems to me, overlooks a vital truth. That is that you cannot fight the "communist menace" by armed alliances.

—MAY TURN TO COMMUNISM—

So long as our economy is a healthy, going economy, we are in no danger here at home. That is an example to the world. But also Britain and the United States must make it clear to colonial and subject peoples that they mean to help them toward higher standards of living and toward the freedoms we talk so glibly in our speeches.

If millions of people come to believe there is no hope under our system—millions in India, in Indonesia, in the middle West—they will turn to something else. And it may be Communism. Communism can only exploit disaffection and discontent that fester in old resentments and injustices.

Take a small example. Churchill spoke of our military power around the world. That power has suffered serious disintegration growing out of the "I Wanna Go Home" fever.

Naval Intelligence has established that some of the ring leaders in the demonstrations were Communists. But if thousands upon thousands of GIs had not been so free at what they felt were needless delays. If they had not smarted under the officer caste system, then a few Communists could have had no influence whatsoever.

More action and less rhetoric would seem to be a good prescription for us here in the United States. Talk, as we've learned before, is so cheap except when the bill finally comes due.

became the separate word manure, which was a verb meaning, "to till the soil by hand; to work with the hand." This is Shakespeare's meaning in Othello, Act I, Scene 3, lines, 327-8: "... either to have it sterile with idleness, or manured with industry."

Other familiar words stemming in the Latin manus (hand) are: manipulate, originally, "to operate with the hands"; manufacture, "to make with the hands"; manifest, "seized by the hand"; manuscript, "written by the hand"; manual, "done by the hand"; and manure, "hand care."

Now remember that we began with the original word manuopera. Opera is the Latin plural of opus, "a work, labor." And from opus (and opera) we have such words as operate and its derivatives, and the word opera which, in English, now means "a drama set to music." This opera, a plural noun, has become singular in meaning, and, to pluralize it, we add "s" to form what actually is the double plural "operas."

On the other hand, opus, in English, is a singular noun meaning, "an individual work or composition," as, an opus of a composer of music. And when opus is used as a plural, it becomes—well, what do you think? Simply our old friend opera! English is like that.

Good Morning!

—By The Bugler—

THE COMMON COLD — Why that uncomfortable state of being, when a person is afflicted with all the symptoms of approaching death, is described as the "common cold" would be difficult to explain.

For the cold is not common. It is uncommon.

Every cold is different, depending upon who the sufferer may be. To meet a friend on the street, whose red eyes and swollen nose, chapped lips and sniffles tell you he is one of millions of coryza sufferers, and inform him that he has a "common cold" will bring a quick denial. He will tell you in certain terms that his cold is not the common kind. It is the most unusual illness he has ever experienced.

"It all started the night I sat in a draft at the lodge meeting—" he will begin, and take you from there through every painful twinge to his present state of continuing misery.

MANY REMEDIES — There is nothing that so much brings out the human animal's ability to describe detail than does his illness. People are fascinated by themselves, sick or well, but when their precious bodies threaten to break down this interest in themselves become intense. That is why so many people find enjoyment in talking about their operations. For this reason a roomful of post-operations can have fun relating their experiences even if no one listens. Perhaps more fun. To listen requires open ears and a shut mouth.

Getting back to the common cold—there are as many remedies as there are sufferers. Both number in the millions.

THE HARDY CUSS—The cold remedy that attracts the most attention is practiced by the man who, when he feels a cold coming on, refuses to do anything about it. It is this type that believes that if you keep on your feet and keep going you can "shake it off"—meaning the cold, of course. He will roam out of doors barbequed and without overcoat, braving raw winds with aching head held high and nose dripping like a faucet. You'll find him staggering through a late afternoon of work with a grim and haggard determination. If you ask him he has a cold, his head will come up defiantly.

"Me? A cold? Well I guess not. I never have colds."

THE DRIPPER—At the other extreme is the person who goes all in at the first symptom of discomfort, takes to his (or her) bed and forces there for a good long rest. This suppliant individual is usually the kind who accompanies the rest in bed with a good novel, demands for attention from other members of the family, and gets up only at mealtime to stagger to the table and consume more food than a healthy man.

Another type is the dripper. This person, who for one reason or another chooses or is required to keep on the job during the period of illness, supplies himself with a couple boxes of kleenex per day and plays wet nurse to his cold. From constant attention his nose assumes the form and color of a sweet potato, while the kleenex flutters from the box to nose with regularity of strikers walking out of U. S. factories.

IT'S FASHIONABLE — Time was when the American people

INTO THE PAST

10 Years Ago—1936

For the first time in history, the 20-mile expanse of Lake Michigan from Stonington to St. Martin Island has been travelled by automobile. The trip was made by Peter Jacobson, Stonington storekeeper, Earl Killoran, and Ira Killoran.

Frances Ruth Gauthier, of Bark River, was initiated recently into Zeta Tau Alpha sorority at Michigan State college, East Lansing. She is a senior in liberal arts.

Manistique — Merrill Johnson won first place in oratory, John Solar won first in Declamatory and Lionel Mercier took first place in extempore speaking contests held at the local school recently to determine those who will represent Manistique in the sub-district contests to be held here early in April.

Munising — Leonard Johnson, junior ski rider, won the prize offered by Judge James Hoskings in the final winter ski tournament for boys under sixteen and over twelve years of age, outnumbering his closest opponent, Joseph LaFave, by 4 points.

20 Years Ago—1926

The negative debating team composed of Warren Edwards, Joseph Kohler and Robert Beggs defeated the affirmative team: Edward Curran, Janet Owen and Harry Erickson in the first Escanaba high school interteam debate held at the school. George Embs was chairman, and William Peters was time keeper. Edward Edick, John Nicholas, Hugo Swanson and Miss Eula Mack all of the high school faculty were judges.

Repairs were started yesterday to the roof of the rear unit of the DeGrand garage which collapsed under the unusual weight of snow. The cave in occurred in the portion of the building which formerly was the Stegath mill.

Nice, France — The definite withdrawal today of Senorita de Alvarez of Spain from the Nice tournament, leaves Helen Wills, American tennis champion, without an opponent who can give her much of a battle.

were as little conscious of their sinuses as they were of vitamins. Now it is fashionable to have a "sinus cold", which apparently is a higher-priced variation of the common cold. The symptoms are, approximately the same, with a few variations which the sufferer describes as a feeling "like my eyes were going to drop out," or "my head will split in two."

While these feelings are gripping the sinusitis victim he is in no condition for normal contacts with his fellow men. Making light of his sufferings by terming his affliction a "common cold" is adding insult to injury.

IT COSTS BILLIONS—The cost of attempted prevention and treatment of the inevitable common cold run into billions of dollars. This cost includes the mouth washes, gargles, sprays, ointments, pills, powders, throat lozenges, orange juice, effervescent, vitamin capsules, cold shots, electricity for heating pads, ice for cold packs, lost time on the job—and doctor bills. The doctor comes last, you will note, because the doctor is usually the last person consulted for assistance in curbing ravages of the cold.

Somewhat the cold sufferer is of the opinion that his illness will respond to the latest treatment, no matter the source of the treatment. And free advice on cold remedies is like free advice on how to conduct your business or wallpaper a room—usually worthless.

G. I.—VETERANS SERVICE

Q. Does "Enlisted Individual" include persons inducted into military or naval service through the Selective Service System as well as those who have voluntarily enlisted?

A. Yes; it includes inductees as well as enlistees.

Q. Are enlisted men who are not furnished rations (subsistence) and quarters in kind paid such allowances in cash?

A. Yes. As the rates vary depending on the circumstances under which the monetary allowance is paid and the location of the enlisted man at the time of entitlement, no specific rates generally applicable can be set forth. Generally, an amount of not less than $2.50 and a maximum of $5 per day is allowed.

Q. Is a person following a course of vocational rehabilitation entitled to a vacation during the period?

A. Yes. A leave of absence may be granted but not in excess of 30 days in any consecutive twelve months.

OF GENERAL INTEREST

Q. When and how was the American Federation of Labor founded?

A. The organization was first named "The Federation of Organized Trades and Labor Unions" founded in Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1881. A Conference of National Trade Unions which met in Columbus, Ohio, in December, 1898, considered the situation growing out of their inability to reach a working agreement with the Knights of Labor and formed the American Federation of Labor.

Q. When and where were the first book matches made in the United States?

A. By the Diamond Match Company at Barberton, Ohio, in 1896.

Q. What are some uses for lavender oil?

A. It is used in the manufacture of perfumes, soap, insecticides, ceramics, liquor, lacquer and in medicine. The predominant use is in lavender water, eau de Cologne and high grade perfumes. Lavender oil must be blended with other scents to bring out the lavender odor in toilet soaps.

Q. Do the people of Puerto Rico have any voice in choosing their Governor?

A. No; he is appointed by the President and confirmed by the U. S. Senate.

Q. What is the origin of the word Stuka?

A. It is a contraction of two German words, Sturz, meaning "dive" and Kampf, battle.

Q. When was the coldest winter of which there is a record?

A. It occurred in 1709, when frost penetrated three yards in the ground in Europe, and the whole Adriatic and the coast waters of the Mediterranean were frozen.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

Washington — In approximately six weeks, the Philippines hold their most important presidential election, and shortly afterward—July 4—the Filipino people cast off from the United States to become a full-fledged independent republic—the first in the war-troubled Pacific.

Millions of eyes in the Dutch East Indies, French Indo-China, and India are watching this historic experiment.

The building up of a free, independent Philippines in 50 years is something of which the American and Filipino people can be justly proud. Yet, to have independence succeed, there must be continued stability after July 4, and already there are unfortunate rumblings of internal trouble.

Unfortunately, also, some of the men close to General MacArthur appear to be a root cause of that trouble. Filipinos bluntly accuse them of using their military prestige and position during the war to further their economic position after the war.

It boils down to the age-old battle of Foreign business interests pitted against native farmers and labor, part of the same issue which has caused turmoil in French Indo-China, Malaya, and the Dutch East Indies.

Unfortunately, General MacArthur, though a military hero to the Philippine people, was not an economic hero. In fact, the reverse. He made the mistake of surrounding himself with a staff which has somewhat dimmed his military lustre and who have helped the Filipino people think more about a full rice bowl than medals. Among these men are:

—BUSINESS—MILITARY CLIQUE—
GENERAL—
Courtney Whitney—A Manila lawyer, who happened to be in the United States at the time of Pearl Harbor, got commissioned, and, upon arrival in Australia, was placed in charge of the Philippine section of GHQ.

Mike Elizalde—Former Philippine commissioner in the USA, who owns thousands of acres of sugar plantations, one entire block of Manila warehouses, and who plays close to Gen. Manuel Roxas, who is considered MacArthur's personal candidate for president.

Col. Andres Soriano—wealthiest man in the Philippines, Soriano was a Spanish citizen up until one day after Pearl Harbor. He was also Franco's honorary consul in Manila, collected large sums of money for Franco during the Spanish Civil War, and was given the grand medal of Naval Merit by Franco as a reward despite this, MacArthur made Soriano a Colonel on his staff.

Soriano owns gold mines, lumber companies, and two large breweries in the Philippines, together with two others in Kansas City and Milwaukee. It was to one of these—the San Miguel Brewery—that the War Department flew 20 tons of beer-bottle caps in three special planes last December. No one not close to MacArthur could have secured the priorities to fly 20 tons of Beer-bottle caps across the Pacific, War Department officials freely state.

General MacArthur is also reported to have heavy investments in the Philippines, and to be associated with Soriano and General Whitney in the consolidated gold mine and the Antamok mine. Unfortunately, this has added to Filipino economic unrest and the feeling that the war was won partly to retrieve the vested interest of the MacArthur military clique.

—MACARTHUR'S GOLD MINE—

Lieut. Col. Jesus Villamor, greatest Filipino war hero, now retiring from the U. S. Army, goes so far as to state that on at least one occasion army equipment was used in the interest of MacArthur's investments.

In November 1940, Colonel Villamor states, he was ordered to fly over the Mother Lode gold mine in Mindanao and make a mosaic air photo of this area.

"We were preparing to map various areas in the Philippines at the time," Colonel Villamor states, "but orders came to map the Mindanao Mother Lode mine first. I left with two planes immediately and carried out the mission myself, though hindered by weather. The orders came from Colonel Backes, then chief of the Philippine air corps, who told me that he, in turn, had received his orders from the top. I was informed that the gold mining company would pay for the gasoline and expenses of the flight. It was generally accepted in Manila that General MacArthur had a financial interest in the mine."

Colonel Villamor is the man whom MacArthur sent into the Philippines on Jan. 14, 1943, to organize a spy network and help coordinate the work of the famous Guerrillas who did so much to upset the Japanese occupation and who later contributed to the success of American landings.

Villamor was able to operate in the Philippines for 11 months before American forces landed, and the Guerrilla forces he organized were described by Gen. George B. Decker, chief of staff of the Sixth army, as "one of the best fighting units I have ever known." For this service, Villamor was given the U. S. Distinguished Service Cross, the Legion of Merit, the Philippine Medal of Honor, Distinguished Service Star, and almost more ribbons than he can wear.

POTATO MEN TO HEAR CLANAHAN

Wenner Schedules Five Meetings Of Delta Spud Growers

Delta county potato growers are invited by E. A. Wenner, county agricultural agent, to attend five meetings in the county at which D. L. Clannahan, Marquette, extension potato specialist, will be principal speaker.

The meetings are scheduled to be held Tuesday and Wednesday, March 12 and 13, as follows:

Tuesday—2 p. m. St. Nicholas church basement; 7:30 p. m. Kasten school at Hyde.

Wednesday—10 a. m. Flat Rock township hall; 2 p. m. Bark River township hall; 7:30 p. m. Cornell township hall.

The attention of the potato growers was directed by the county agent to the importance of the 1946 season, which will start with the planting of the tubers within another three months. Potatoes are the county's chief cash crop, and the county is one of the leaders in the state in the production of certified seed.

Topics scheduled for discussion at the meetings include:

The 1946 support program; the Brewster potato bill in congress which will seriously affect the growers; the use of DDT as a potato spray; new cultural practices; and the start of the sixth year of the county Potato Booster contest.

New Circus Queens Make Bake, The Elephant, Earn Her Salt

BY J. L. MILLER

NEA Special Correspondent

Sarasota, Fla. (NEA).—Does Madame have difficulty in getting lost of dignity? Then, sister, you ought to try mounting an elephant! Here amid palm trees and balmy Florida air—which still may be breathed without additional charge even by the common tourist—a group of would-be circus queens are striving to master the art of swinging gracefully to the head of a performing pachyderm.

Most of these lassies are ex-horsemen girls, and a few have been in burlesque. But it's a safe bet they never before exhibited so many—er—charms to the public eye as upon the occasions of their first few scrambles to jumbo's top. This learning session is largely responsible for the popularity of the elephant barns at circus quarters here here Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey are preparing for the 1946 season. The sight of a well-turned leg is always an attraction, although some merely go to watch the elephants blush. Across the way in a mannerly barn a Siberian wolf has howled himself hoarse.

A respectable middle-aged lady elephant named Babe probably suffers more from these sessions than anyone else. Babe has been kicked in the teeth, had her ears pulled and her lovely four-inch eye lashes yanked out by handfuls as hour after hour neophytes clamor up her trunk by the dozen to pose inelegantly upon her broad head.

It's no fun for the girls either at first. "I feel as though I'd just done a week's washing," a shapely redhead said as she came, perspiration-drenched, from her first two hours with Babe. Babe's complexion is more sandpaper than satin and the redhead had skinned both knees on the way down.

However, there are also remunerations. Babe gets an extra shovelful of salt, and the girls this season are dragging down from $90 to $150 per week, which would not be peanuts even to Babe.

From this it may be gathered the circus is in the chips again. There was a time when—staggering under the $3,000,000 burden of the Hartford fire victims' claims plus acute internal dissension among Ringling factions—it looked as though the big top might fold. But no more.

The big show came back from the road last fall with a $6,000,000 gross—even after Uncle Sam's tax collectors had deducted their share. It was the biggest season in circus history, and the show's hardboiled executives are convinced '46 will be even bigger.

With this in mind, the circus is expanding—there will be more spangles, more glitter, a bigger big top with more seats. Even Gargantua has grown. The show's press agents are searching for superlatives.

Expect 5,000,000

From last year's golden return, the show earmarked $280,000 for a new opening spectacle to replace the wartime "Alice in Circustland" number. Nature of the new "spec" is still a top secret and it would be easier to walk into the U. S. mint with an empty suitcase than to get into the costume department where its properties are being designed.

Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey expect to play to nearly 5,000,000 Americans this year in its six weeks in New York's Madison Square Garden and 300 under-canvas performances. The new big top now under construction here will be 340 feet long, 240 feet wide, and will seat 11,500 persons. Heavy fireproofed canvas is being used, and all seats are of steel. The show is taking no chances of a recurrence of the Hartford disaster, which in addition to its heavy monetary loss also sent several highly essential executives to jail.

SALE OF LIQUOR IS DENIED HERE

Miss Lorraine Derouin Says She Was Cook At Chuckle Club

Miss Lorraine Derouin of 711 Ludington street, charged with the sale of liquor at the Chuckle Club, located a couple miles west of Escanaba, yesterday denied that she had sold any drinks and that she was employed in the kitchen of the nightclub.

Testifying in her own behalf at the hearing in Justice Henry E. Ranguette's court, Miss Derouin said that she was never behind the bar and had never sold anyone liquor.

Justice Ranguette took the case under advisement and will study the transcript of the testimony before deciding whether Miss Derouin will be bound over to circuit court for trial. She is at liberty under $500 bond.

Miss Derouin and Charles Johnston of Escanaba were arrested the morning of Jan. 20 following a raid on the Chuckle Club in which officers of the sheriff's department, state police, and liquor control commission participated. At the time of the raid the officers confiscated 12 bottles of whisky. Johnston also was charged with the sale of liquor without a license. Following a hearing in Justice court he was bound over to circuit court for trial. The spring session of circuit court will open April 8 in the courthouse at Escanaba.

Witnesses testifying for the prosecution included William Linaker, enforcement officer for the liquor control commission; Sgt. Willard Wilcox of the Gladstone detachment, Michigan state police; and Elmer Johnson.

The liquor license of the Chuckle Club was permanently revoked in April of 1945 after Johnston had twice previously been cited before the liquor control commission for violations.

U. P. Literature Will Be Shown

Marquette—Literature telling of the advantages of vacations in Michigan, including the Upper Peninsula, is being distributed at the Michigan exhibit shown during the American-Canadian Sportsmen's Show which is being conducted at the Civic Auditorium in Cleveland this week.

Inquiries regarding vacations in Upper Michigan will be serviced by letters and literature mailed from the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau's office in Marquette.

From March 9 to 17, Michigan tourist organizations will be represented at the Detroit Sportsmen's and Boat Show to be held in Convention Hall, Woodward Avenue, Detroit, with Claude E. Bishop representing the Development Bureau, Chambers of Commerce and operators of resorts in the Peninsula are invited to send personal representatives in addition to literature for distribution at the show.

Judging by inquiries already received from the International Sportsmen's Show held recently in Chicago, thousands of persons denied vacations during the war are planning extended rests this summer, substantiating the belief that the Upper Peninsula will enjoy one of its greatest tourist seasons.

Before entering the service in June, 1945, he attended Escanaba Senior High school.

Marquette—Stewart Woodfill, of Mackinac Island, and George E. Bishop, secretary-manager of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, will be U. P. representatives at a meeting of the Michigan Tourist Council to be held March 13-14 in the Fort Shelby hotel in Detroit.

A feature of the meeting will be a dinner for Michigan editors and newspapermen in the Fort Shelby hotel at 5:30 Wednesday, March 13.

In addition to Bishop, members of the council are Frank Davis, secretary-manager of the East Michigan Tourist Association; William Palmer, secretary-manager of the West Michigan Tourist and Resort Association; J. ## Duluth Sizes Up Newest Rivals Of Iron Ranges ### getting ready for a Mexico mining exploration trip.

"It may sound romantic," he remarked in his bluff yet friendly way, "but this mining business is mostly rough work. I'll likely end up with malaria."

Roberts is pretty proud of the way Steep Rock exploration was carried on, with the ore under a deep lake. Now that the lake is dry, predictions are being borne out.

Ore Begins to Move

Actual mining got under way in October, 1944. Before the freeze-up 44,000 tons were shipped down the lake. Last season 505,000 tons were shipped. First cargoes had to go a long route by rail to the Duluth Superior docks. But last fall the new docks at Port Arthur were completed and virtually all of Steep Rock's ore will go that way hereafter.

The dry ore has analyzed 59.1 per cent iron, with a low phosphorus content, giving it a quality on a par with the fine stuff from the Vermilion range in Minnesota, which comes from underground diggings.

Roberts estimates that Steep Rock has 31,000,000 tons of proven and probable ore which can be dug by the open pit method and enough underground ore to last for a generation or more.

The Cleveland-Cliffs outfit, also active on the Minnesota ranges, has a hand in Steep Rock. RFC kicked in with $5 million on the development and George Allen was put on the board of directors.

Well, Steep Rock won't put the Minnesota mines out of business, but Duluth is wary about some of the others. This metropolis of the ranges has a big stake in iron. Year after year for a long time now, the mines back from here have been supplying 70 per cent of total United States production, 30 per cent of the whole world's output.

Classified Ads cost little but do a big job.

Another Canadian venture is proving out—the Steep Rock mines near Antikokan, Ont., 120 miles west of Port Arthur. More than a hundred billion gallons of water were pumped out of Steep Rock lake to get at the ore. A year ago last fall I went up to Antikokan, a dreary little town in the wilderness, to see the giant drainage project. A river had to be diverted, tunnels and canals cut through solid rock, 40 feet of muck removed, dams built.

All that was done just about on schedule, Hugh M. Roberts, consulting geologist at Steep Rock, told me in his office here. Roberts is a big powerfultan, just

FISHING PACT WINS APPROVAL

U. S. and Canada Will Have Uniform Control

Lansing—The pending treaty between the United States and Canada to govern commercial fishing in the great lakes was approved unanimously Tuesday by the state conservation commission. Treaty details have not been disclosed, but it is known as a board of six—three from Canada and three from the United States—is provided on Lake Michigan regulations, Director P. J. Hoffmaster explained, only United States representatives would be entitled to vote because none of Lake Michigan is in Canadian territory.

Large-scale hatchery rearing of warm-water fish such as bass, bluegills, perch and walleyed pike went into the discard as the commission approved recommendations of the fish division that artificial propagation give way to habitat improvement and numerous experiments to boost natural production of fish.

The same type of program had been approved earlier as to trout. Numerous hatchery ponds will be devoted to propagation of bait minnows.

Purchase of two western Michigan tracts for hunting land was approved from Pittman-Robertson funds. One is a 37-acre area bordering Long lake, Ionia county, and including 1,400 feet of frontage on a marsh. The other is a 40-acre tract adjacent to state-owned lands in the Belding vicinity.

From the $1.50 deer fund purchases were approved as follows: Five-Lake state forest, 40 acres; Cedar deeryard, Leelanau county, 40 acres, including small trout stream, and Norway state game area, Dickinson county, 115.97 acres.

In normal times, British farmers are able to produce 40 per cent of the food needed for the nation.

F. C. STRASSER DIES

Houghton—Frederick C. Strasser, 83 years old, a well known resident of the Copper Country, passed away Wednesday evening at his home at 1203 East Fifth street. Three weeks ago Mr. Strasser suffered a broken leg in a fall in his yard. The deceased had been in failing health for a considerable time.

Mr. Strasser was well known throughout the district and his death will be mourned by many friends. Born in St. Louis, Mo., he came to Houghton in 1900 and had resided here continuously since. He was first employed at the Michigan College of Mines after which he was employed at the DuPont plant at Senter. He organized and managed a Merchants Co-operative Delivery service in Houghton, and after it stopped functioning he was employed by the Gately-Wiggins Co. in Houghton. He retired 18 years ago.

Miss Helen Dare,
Ralph E. Rose Wed
In San Francisco

In San Francisco, St. Peter's Episcopal church by the Golden Gate was the setting for the recent ceremony which united in marriage Miss Helen Elizabeth Dare and Ralph E. Rose.

Officiating at the candlelight ceremony was the Rev. John Collins, who read the wedding rites before an altar backed with spring blossoms. Irvin W. Dare of Spokane, Wash., escorted his daughter down the aisle, and Miss Laura L. Athey, dressed in aqua tulle and net, carrying a bouquet of crimson roses, was maid of honor. Miss Dare repeated her vows in a gown of white slipper satin, styled with a net and lace shoulder insert, and court train. She carried an unusually lovely shower bouquet of white tulips.

Standing with the bridegroom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rose of Escanaba, was Lt. Harry W. Graham, USCG, Lt. Donald A. Rutledge, USN, escorted the guests to their seats.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Ferris Institute, Grand Rapids, and wore the uniform of an Infantry Captain in which he served with the 29th Infantry Regiment in the European theater until recently discharged. His bride is a graduate of State College of Washington, and has attended the University of Michigan and the University of California.

The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Irvin W. Dare, travelled from Spokane to San Francisco for the ceremony.

The bridegroom's aunt, Mrs. Margaret Schmidt of Oakland, Calif., poured at the reception, which was held at the church after the ceremony.

The couple flew to Southern California for their honeymoon at an ocean beach hotel at Del Mar. They plan to spend some time in Mexico before returning to make their home at 1946 Washington, San Francisco, where the bridegroom is now employed.

CALIFORNIA BRIDE—Miss Helen Dare of San Francisco, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin W. Dare of Spokane, Wash., became the bride of Ralph E. Rose, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rose of Escanaba, at a recent ceremony which took place in San Francisco. The couple are spending their honeymoon in Mexico.

Try Italian Sauce
For Good Spaghetti

BY GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Staff Writer

Several readers ask for a genuine Italian sauce to use with spaghetti. Here's an authentic recipe prepared by Enrico Caruso, Jr., son of the famous tenor.

Spaghetti Sauce
Two tablespoons olive oil, 2 tablespoons butter, 5 cloves garlic, 3 tablespoons chopped parsley, 1 tablespoon oregano, 1 cup chopped (not too fine) mushrooms, large can Italian tomatoes (solid pack), juice of large lemon, salt, black pepper and red pepper to taste.

Heat oil and butter in large frying pan, heavy iron preferable, and allow garlic cloves to sizzle and brown slowly. Mash cloves lightly as they soften so that butter and oil can penetrate. After they turn brown, remove and throw away. Add oregano and let simmer for a few minutes. Add mushrooms; add chopped parsley. Cook, stirring constantly.

Add can of tomatoes, keep stirring and turn up flame slightly. Blend in well until all ingredients are well heated and bubbling. Blend salt and pepper to taste. Turn fire down; cover; cook slowly; stir every few minutes. Stirring is most important, as ingredients tend to separate. While sauce is cooking, add lemon juice, salt and pepper, being careful to add lemon juice in accordance with sweetness or sourness of the tomatoes. Cook for 2 hours, stirring every few minutes. Leave lid off during last half hour if you desire a thicker sauce.

When cooking oyster stew just heat oysters long enough to plump them; an overcooking may tend to make the oysters tough and leathery.

Since then, Ray has directed everything from two-reel shorts for Warner Bros. in New York, comedies for Hal Roach, countless B pictures, and "The Cowboy and the Blonde" for 20th Century-Fox. He has a new one coming up titled "Strange Triangle," with Signe Hasso and Preston Foster. They say it is a swell job and some ways on the lot are even referring to Ray as "Leo McCarey, J. C."

Not long ago a man walked up to Ray in a Hollywood cafe, handed him a $100 bill, said, "Thanks, Leo, for the loan," and walked off. Ray went to the phone, called Leo and said, "I just got paid $100 for being your brother." "Mail me the money," said Leo. "None," said Ray, "this is mine." He kept it.

BY ERSKINE JOHNSON
NEA Staff Correspondent
Hollywood, (NEA)—"You are sure," Ray McCarey said, with an amused grin, "that you don't want to talk to Leo?"

We assured him that Leo McCarey has had enough publicity lately. We wanted to talk to his kid brother, Ray.

Both film directors, the McCarey boys, sons of a famous Los Angeles fight promoter, "Uncle Tom" McCarey, are constantly being mistaken for each other. With Leo ("Going My Way") the more famous brother, the embarrassing situations usually involve Ray. It was Ray who directed Bing Crosby's first movie, a two-reel short.

Visiting Bing and Leo on the set of "The Bells," Ray quipped to Der Bingle.

"I started you and now my brother is going to finish you."

Wrong Brother
In fact, Hollywood's most classic story is told by Ray McCarey on himself. One day he was called on the telephone by a big studio wanted to hire him for a three-million-dollar picture. He could have any stars he wanted—Gable, Turner, Garson, Pidgeon—anybody. Would he please come over the next day and pick up the script?

After directing minor budget films for so long, Ray naturally was excited. First thing he did was to call up his brother Leo and tell him about it, saying, "Leo, I think this is it." Leo said: "Congratulations, Ray. It certainly sounds terrific."

Next day Ray went to M-G-M, picked up the script and went to the big shot's office to thank him. The big shot was equally enthralled about it all and after discussing the script and the stars with Ray, he said:

"Well, Leo, drop by tomorrow and we'll sign the contracts."

Although eight years younger than Leo, Ray actually has been in the film business longer. Both studied to be lawyers. Leo joined a Los Angeles law firm and did some work for Tod Browning, the director, who talked him into becoming an assistant director.

Two years previously, Ray had also given up law for a Hollywood job.

"Only I started on the incinerator gang at Paramount," he chuckled.

Furniture Moved
Later Ray was promoted—to C. B. DeMille's chair boy. It was

WAGE INCREASE BEING SOUGHT
Veneer Plant Employees Ask 30 Per Cent Boost

Issues relevant to their demand for wage increases are to be discussed at a special meeting of the Mill and Timber Workers Union, Local No. 9, composed of employees of the Northwestern Veneer and Plywood corporation, to be held today at the Legion hall.

John Lucke, U. S. Department of Labor conciliator, met with members of the union grievance committee and corporation officials this week in an effort to mediate the matter.

The grievance committee met with management officials again yesterday following a special meeting of the union Thursday and it was later announced that no agreement had been reached.

A 30 per cent increase in wages is asked by the union.

S. R. Venne, president and general manager of the corporation, stated that wage rates and production schedules and the take-home pay of the workers is still at wartime peaks.

WM. MARQUETTE 7TH CANDIDATE

Seek Election To Commission
William Marquette, Soo Line roadmaster, has filed a nomination petition for city commissioner, bringing to seven the number of candidates seeking election to the governing body on Monday, April 1.

Two commissioners are to be elected, the terms of J. A. LaFramboise and August Olson expiring. The former has announced his candidacy for re-election while the latter is retiring.

Other candidates are Edward Olson Jr., Leslie Hermanson, Archie Belanger, Paul Verhamme and Walter Lied.

Marquette, the latest candidate to enter the race, is a veteran roadmaster with 30 years service, 20 of which have been spent in the official capacity of roadmaster. He came to Gladstone in 1932 and resides in a home which he owns at 417 Wisconsin avenue.

The Marquettes have four sons, Earl, Berkeley, Calif., a fireman on the Southern Pacific; Gene, Moose Lake, Minn., roadmaster for the Soo Line; Wilman, now a student at Albion college, Albion, after more than five years, two overseas, with the Army Air Force; and Ralph, U. S. Army cavalry, who when last heard from was enroute to Europe guarding war prisoners who were being returned.

Monday, March 11, at 5 p. m. is the deadline for filing of nomination petitions.

Ed had been justified in shooting both of them. Maybe I should have considering the risk I was running.

THAT'LL HOLD YOU A WHILE, NOW I'LL SEE HOW SHORTLY SLEEPING.

His face was scratched and cut where he'd come through the window, but he was all in one piece.

IT WOULD SERVE YOU RIGHT IF I LET YOU STAY HERE AND BURN WITH THE HOUSE.

I had no pity for him. He and his pal had murdered Judge Garrison in one of the most heartless killings I'd ever encountered.

When I straightened up, he grabbed my foot. He'd been playing possum.

Miss Helen Dare,
Ralph E. Rose Wed
In San Francisco

In San Francisco, St. Peter's Episcopal church by the Golden Gate was the setting for the recent ceremony which united in marriage Miss Helen Elizabeth Dare and Ralph E. Rose.

Officiating at the candlelight ceremony was the Rev. John Collins, who read the wedding rites before an altar banked with spring blossoms. Irvin W. Dare of Spokane, Wash., escorted his daughter down the aisle, and Miss Laura L. Athey, dressed in aqua taffeta and net, carrying a bouquet of crimson roses, was maid of honor.

Miss Dare repeated her vows in gown of white slipper satin, styled with a net and lace shoulder insert, and court train. She carried an unusually lovely shawl bouquet of white tulips.

Standing with the bridegroom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rose of Escanaba, was Lt. Harry W. Graham, USCG. Lt. Donald A. Rutledge, USN, escorted the guests to their seats.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Ferris Institute, Grand Rapids, and wore the uniform of an Infantry Captain in which he served with the 29th Infantry Regiment in the European theater until recently discharged. His bride is a graduate of State College of Washington, and has attended the University of Michigan and the University of California.

The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Irvin W. Dare, travelled from Spokane to San Francisco for the ceremony.

The bridegroom's aunt, Mrs. Margaret Schmidt of Oakland, Calif., poured at the reception, which was held at the church after the ceremony.

The couple flew to Southern California for their honeymoon at an ocean beach hotel at Del Mar. They plan to spend some time in Mexico before returning to make their home at 1946 Washington, San Francisco, where the bridegroom is now employed.

CALIFORNIA BRIDE—Miss Helen Dare of San Francisco, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin W. Dare of Spokane, Wash., became the bride of Ralph E. Rose, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rose of Escanaba, at a recent ceremony which took place in San Francisco. The couple are spending their honeymoon in Mexico.

Try Italian Sauce
For Good Spaghetti

BY GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Staff Writer

Several readers ask for a genuine Italian sauce to use with spaghetti. Here's an authentic recipe prepared by Enrico Caruso, Jr., son of the famous tenor.

Spaghetti Sauce
Two tablespoons olive oil, 2 tablespoons butter, 5 cloves garlic, 3 tablespoons chopped parsley, 1 tablespoon oregano, 1 cup chopped (not too fine) mushrooms, large can Italian tomatoes (solid pack), juice of large lemon, salt, black pepper and red pepper to taste.

Heat oil and butter in large frying pan, heavy iron preferable, and allow garlic cloves to simmer and brown slowly. Mash cloves lightly as they soften so that butter and oil can penetrate. After they turn brown, remove and throw away. Add oregano and let simmer for a few minutes. Add mushrooms; add chopped parsley. Cook, stirring constantly.

Add can of tomatoes; keep stirring and turn up flame slightly. Blend in well until all ingredients are well heated and bubbling. Turn fire down; cover; cook slowly; stir every few minutes. Stirring is most important, as ingredients tend to separate. While sauce is cooking, add lemon juice, salt and pepper, being careful to add lemon juice in accordance with sweetness or sourness of the tomatoes. Cook for 2 hours, stirring every few minutes. Leave lid off during last half hour if you desire a thicker sauce.

When cooking oyster stew just heat oysters long enough to plump them as overcooking may tend to make the oysters tough and leathery.

In Hollywood

BY ERSKINE JOHNSON
NEA Staff Correspondent

Leo ("Going My Way") are sure," Ray McCarey said, with an amused grin, "that you don't want to talk to Leo?"

We assured him that Leo McCarey has had enough publicity lately. We wanted to talk to his kid brother, Ray.

Both film directors, the McCarey boys, sons of a famous Los Angeles fight promoter, "Uncle Tom" McCarey, are constantly being mistaken for each other. With Leo ("Going My Way") and "The Belles of St. Mary's," the more famous brother, the embarrassing situations usually involve Ray. It was Ray who directed Bing Crosby's first movie, a two-reel short.

Visiting Bing and Leo on the set of "The Belles," Ray quipped to Der Bingle:

"I started you and now my brother is going to finish you."

Wrong Brother
In fact, Hollywood's most classic story is told by Ray McCarey on himself. One day he was called on the telephone by a big studio wanted to hire him for a three-million-dollar picture. He could have any stars he wanted—Gable, Turner, Garson, Pidgeon—anybody. Would he please come over the next day and pick up the script?

After directing minor budget films for so long, Ray naturally was excited. First thing he did was to call up his brother, Leo, and tell him about it, saying: "Leo, I think this is it." Leo said: "Congratulations, Ray! It certainly sounds terrific."

Next day Ray went to M-G-M, picked up the script and went to the big shot's office to thank him. The big shot was equally enthused about it all and after discussing the script and the stars with Ray, he said:

"Well, Leo, drop by tomorrow and we'll sign the contracts." Although eight years younger than Leo, Ray actually has been in the film business longer. Both studied to be lawyers. Leo joined a Los Angeles law firm and did some work for Tod Browning, the director, who talked him into becoming an assistant director.

Two years previously, Ray had also given up law for a Hollywood job.

"Only I started on the incinerator gang at Paramount," he chuckled.

Furniture Mover
Later Ray was promoted—to C. B. DeMille's chair boy. It was

Scouting Title
Claimed By Boy

AP Newsfeatures

Helena, Mont.—If there were such a thing as a world's champion Boy Scout, Eagle Scout Donald Berg of Helena would be just that—or, at least, among the contenders.

Among his multitudinous honors, the 15-year-old, red-haired lad recently became the first Boy Scout to receive the Protestant God and Country award, presented by the National Protestant Committee on Scouting.

Requirements for that award, alone, entailed enough effort to absorb an average scout's enthusiasm, but not Donald. He has 34 merit badges, and has received the American Legion School award, Eisenhower Salvage Campaign medal, and Emergency Service Corps badge.

Donald recently was initiated into the Order of the Arrow, national campers' honor society, and the National Eagle Scout Service Society, order of the Knights of Dunamis. He was elected scribe of the Order of the Arrow.

He plays high school basketball and football, and runs the dashes in track.

His ambition is to be a preacher.

Ray's job to follow the great C. B. around the set carrying his canvas chair. One afternoon C. B. sat down, the chair wasn't there and Ray got fired.

Since then, Ray has directed everything from two-reel shorts for Warner Bros. in New York, comedies for Hal Roach, countless B pictures, and "The Cowboy and the Blonde" for 20th Century-Fox.

He has a new one coming up titled "Strange Triangle," with Signe Hasso and Preston Foster. They say it is a swell job and some wags on the lot are even referring to Ray as "Leo McCarey, Jr."

Not long ago a man walked up to Ray in a Hollywood cafe, handed him a $100 bill, said, "Thanks, Leo, for the loan," and walked off.

Ray went to the phone, called Leo and said, "I just got paid $100 for being your brother." "Mail me the money," said Leo. "Nuts," said Ray, "this is mine." He kept it.

Chatham

Luther League Meeting
Chatham, Mich.—Tuesday evening members of the Luther League held a meeting at the Finnish National Lutheran church to plan a program to be presented in the near future. Reverend Aramis Maki of Marquette directed the meeting.

At a meeting held the week before, the following officers were elected: President, Bernard Kallio; secretary, Irene Perkins; treasurer, Alice Laakso; program committee composed of Carol Hakala and Gladys Lindquist.

All interested young people are invited to come to these meetings.

4-H Club Meeting
The Chatham 4-H Sewing club, composed of twenty-five girls of the 5th and 6th grades, held a meeting at the Chatham school Friday, March 1 with their leader, Mrs. Fred Lemm. Officers were elected as follows: President, Joanne Brissin; vice president, Anne Maki; secretary, Nancy Johnson; treasurer, Lorraine Kampinen.

Mrs. Gladys Mercier of Manistique, 4-H Club agent, addressed the group on National 4-H Club Week, which is being held this week all over the United States. Mrs. George McIntyre reported on the leader's meeting held the week before at the Eben school at which plans were discussed for organizing this year's various 4-H clubs.

National 4-H Club Week
The Chatham and Eben 4-H Club are commemorating National 4-H Club Week from March 2 to 10 with a general exhibit of canning, cooking, sewing, handicraft, etc. The display will be in the windows of the Chatham Co-operative store all this week.

National 4-H Club Week is being commemorated in all parts of the country this week. For 1946 the organization has adopted ten objectives, some of which are: learning to live in a changing world, choosing a way of earning a living, creating better homes for better living, sharing responsibility for community improvement, and serving as citizens in maintaining world peace.

Chatham Women's Guild
Mrs. William Spence was hostess to the Chatham Women's Guild Thursday, February 29. The next meeting will be March 20 at the home of Mrs. J. G. Wells in Marquette.

WAGE INCREASE BEING SOUGHT

Veneer Plant Employees Ask 30 Per Cent Boost

Issues relevant to their demand for wage increases are to be discussed at a special meeting of the Mill and Timber Workers Union, Local No. 9, composed of employees of the Northwestern Veneer and Plywood corporation, to be held today at the Legion hall.

John Luecke, U. S. Department of Labor conciliator, met with members of the union grievance committee and corporation officials this week in an effort to mediate the matter.

The grievance committee met with management officials again yesterday following a special meeting of the union Thursday and it was later announced that no agreement had been reached.

A 30 per cent increase in wages is asked by the union.

S. R. Venne, president and general manager of the corporation, stated that wage-rates and production schedules and the take-home pay of the workers is still at wartime peaks.

FADED MAROONS SLIP IN SPORTS

Athletic Directors Shy
Away From Decision On Picking Replacement

BY JERRY LISK

Chicago, March 8 (AP)—The University of Chicago, a charter member and once a dominating power under Amos Alonzo Stagg, today withdrew from the 50-year-old Big Ten Conference because of athletic impotency.

Long expected, the withdrawal of the faded Maroons, whose halcyon past held seven undisputed conference football championships, equalled only by Minnesota's modern Gophers, paved the way for a possible new member.

The withdrawal was announced at a meeting of conference athletic directors by T. Nelson Metcalf, Chicago athletic director, but final action on the move awaits the spring meeting of the conference faculty representatives at Champaign, Ill., May 30-31.

The Maroons will compete until the end of the school year.

At that time, also, formal deliberations are expected on possible replacement of the Maroons. The athletic directors shied away from the subject after expressing "deep and sincere" regrets at Chicago's departure.

Named frequently as conference prospects ever since Maroon athletics hit the skids after Stagg's departure in 1933, were such schools as Pittsburgh, Nebraska, Michigan State, Marquette, Notre Dame, and Iowa State.

Metcalf said Chicago was "forced to a decision" in its withdrawal by the recent conference basketball season in which the Maroons ran up their 60th straight defeat.

The Maroons, he explained, would continue intercollegiate competition in all sports except football which was formally dropped in 1939.

"HAPPY TO ACCEPT"

East Lansing, March 8 (AP)—"No comment" was the official word from Michigan State College athletic officials today when queried as to whether the Spartan school would accept an invitation to join the Western Conference in place of the University of Chicago, which announced its intention to withdraw from the Big Ten today.

President John A. Hannah of M. S. C. would make no comment as to whether State would accept a Big Ten invitation if approached, although in the past he has been known to be in favor of M. S. C.'s entrance into the 50-year-old conference.

Athletic Director Ralph H. Young said as far as he knew, Michigan State's attitude toward accepting a Western conference invitation would remain as it has been for some time. "We would be very happy to accept such an invitation if one is extended," he declared.

A college spokesman said there had been no official decision of the administration or the athletic board on the possibility of M. S. C. joining the Big Ten.

Heilmann Talks About Old Days In Big Leagues

BY WHITNEY MARTIN

Lakeland, Fla., March 8 (AP)—The Detroit Tigers had a man in scoring position in their opening exhibition game with the Washington Senators and the amiable freckled guy with the steady eyes were talking to said "excuse me a minute," and left.

He put on a catcher's mask, grabbed a hand microphone and hurried out to take a position behind the plate umpire, dragging a length of wire after him. It made an odd looking tandem up there at home plate with the batter, the catcher, the umpire and this kibitzer, who was Harry Heilmann, getting some records made of the action to ship back for broadcast to Tiger fans.

He still looks like he might be able to step up there in the batter's box and do better than most of the current hitters, although it's nearly 20 years since he last led the American league with a mark of .398 and more than 15 years since he played his last game.

Players Indifferent

Heilmann is a product of that Cobb-Sister-Speaker-Jackson era when a mark of .400 wasn't always a sure bet to lead the league, and Frank Navin, then owner of the Tigers, became so accustomed to such high final grades among his pupils that when Heilmann dropped to .365 one year Navin grumpily wanted to know what was the matter, anyway.

We stood with him and watched the various Tiger and Washington hitters come to the plate and take their cuts and Heilmann casually would remark on some fault in the different styles. "He's a big man," he said of some rookie, "but his shoulders aren't squared away. His shoulder nearest the pitcher is higher, and that will cause him to pop the ball into the air as he'll take an upper-cut swing at it."

Later, in the clubhouse he was talking about the indifference of the players today concerning the tools of their trade, particularly their bats.

"You never see a player sitting in the clubhouse any more rubbing a bat with a big ham bone," he said. "We used to do that by the hour to get the veneer off the bat and keep it smooth. Then we'd keep them well rubbed with oil. At one time a fan was in charge of a big oil vat at a plant where they made automobile bodies. That was before steel bodies, of course. We'd send the bats up there before the season and have them soaked in oil. When we were ordering bats some times we'd order them a couple of ounces lighter or than we wanted them, knowing they'd pick up those ounces through the oil treatment."

One Bat A Season

"A player then treated his bat as something precious. If a rookie picked up a regular's bat he'd be liable to get his head knocked off. Now some pitcher who gets about two hits a year might take a star hitter's bat and go up there and break it."

"I used to use one bat a whole year, and once used one a year."

and a half. Cobb would do the same thing, although he was a little superstitious and would change off bats occasionally.

"After a game you'd see the players go over and take their own bats to the clubhouse and lock them in their lockers. Now the men never look at them after a game, letting the batboy take care of them."

Heilmann did not mean to be critical of the modern players, as there is no malice in him. He was just making a comparison which to him was obvious, and although he drew no conclusions it was apparent he believed that if the modern hitters took better care of the tools of their trade they might be better hitters.

Which they might be, at that, as you never see a star golfer with neglected clubs, or a billiard player with a warped and nicked cue.

We'll have to take a good look at the bat Ted Williams uses one of these days. We have an idea he would sleep with it under his pillow or keep it in a glass case if he thought it would help his average as all he thinks about is hitting from the time he hits the deck in the morning until he hits the hay at night.

Drawings Today At Rapid River

The drawings for the Class D and Class E district tournament at Rapid River will be this morning at 10 o'clock at the Rapid River high school, it has been announced by R. P. Bowers. The tournament is one of the largest in the peninsula, with eight entries in Class D and a similar number in Class E.

The German plane, "Volksjaeger", was able to climb to 19,700 feet in six minutes.

ARMY FULLBACK—Pfc. John J. Schwalbach, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Schwalbach, 511 N. 20th street, was the first string fullback on the 331st Inf. Reg. football team in Europe last fall. The team won six games, losing only one and played in Vienna, Salzburg, Augsburg, Munich, Zell-Am-See, Linz and Steyr. Pfc. Schwalbach, who was in service nearly three years, recently was discharged at the Fort Sheridan separation center.

The Sports Parade

By Ken Gunderman

The two local golf clubs, the Escanaba club in the city and the Highland club, near Hyde, are preparing for their biggest year in history. Both clubs report enlarged memberships with a considerable increase since the close of the 1945 season. Improvements to the grounds are planned for the coming year at both clubs. Particularly encouraging to golfers is the fact that supplies, including golfballs and clubs, which have been woefully scarce in recent years, are available in limited quantities this season. Moreover, the volume is expected to increase as the season develops.

The Upper Peninsula golf tournament, abandoned during the war years because of travel restrictions and other war-borne factors, will be reinstated next summer and will be held at the Escanaba Golf club on August. The local club is already preparing for this event, which highlights the peninsula golf season. On the basis of present evidence, the 1946 tournament should develop into the most successful in history. The Escanaba club will open its clubhouse in about two weeks, according to Cotton Leonard, even if weather conditions are not yet suitable for golfing.

The Pacific Coast league has not abandoned its fight to gain major league status. Rebuffed in its effort to be classified as a third major league for the 1946 season, the PCL, headed by aggressive Pants Rowland, is demanding big league status by 1947. The West Coast loop insists that it will not tolerate the sale of its top performers to teams in the American and National circuits, a condition that is unavoidable now under the minor-league draft law. The PCL adds substance to its claim by pointing out that the Pacific league last year outdrew the combined attendance of the American Association and the International league, the two other AAA leagues in organized baseball.

There will be no reserved seats sold in advance of the Menominee district basketball tournament and it is regarded as unlikely by Menominee officials that there will be any to turn fans away from the door for any night of the tournament. The Menominee seating capacity is 1400 fans. The fact that the Maroons are not strongly in the running for the district title tempers the enthusiasm of Menominee fans, which should make more seats available for the rabid fans of Escanaba, Iron Mountain and Kingsford. An Escanaba-Kingsford pairing in the finals, if it should develop, will probably pack the Menominee gym, whether the Menominee fans sit home that night or not.

Hit and Miss — Commissioner Fred Klaus has been appointed one of Menominee's two delegates to the U. P. softball meeting planned here March 24 . . . Klaus approves the plan of organizing an upper peninsula association even though it would cost him his job as softball dictator . . . One of the problems that must be decided at the U. P. meeting is whether the peninsula teams will play with ten men as in the past, or follow the new softball rules, which provide only for nine-man teams and shorter bases.

Assistants Named For Coach Murray On Marquette Job

Charlottesville, Va., March 8 (AP)—Al Thomas, football line coach at the University of Virginia the past season, and Charlie Ellis, one of the best backs the Cavaliers ever had, will become assistants to Frank J. Murray when the latter goes to Marquette University as head football coach on March 15.

The announcement of Thomas' selection as Marquette line coach and of Ellis as backfield coach was made today by Murray, Virginia coach for nine years, whose decision to return to the school where he formerly coached 17 years was announced March 2.

Thomas, former University of Tennessee lineman, came to the University of Virginia last year from North Carolina State, where he had served on the coaching staff for one year.

Hawks Ready For Marquette Team

The Escanaba Hawks went through a brisk practice session at the indoor ice rink last night in preparation for their game here Sunday with the star-studded Marquette Sentinels.

Fears of unsatisfactory ice conditions for the Sunday game were dispelled yesterday when the weather conditions stiffened considerably after Thursday's thaw. The outlook for fast ice is bright, the hockey players reported.

The Sentinel game will probably conclude the hockey season in Escanaba.

Oysters are rich in iron and copper and provide a valuable aid in preventing anemia.

ILLINOIS EYES TRACK TITLE

Chicago, March 8 (AP)—Illinois impressively opened a bid for its first Big Ten indoor track title in 15 seasons tonight by qualifying 15 performers and Wisconsin's Lloyd LaBeach established a new broad jump record in the trials of the conference's 36th championships at the University of Chicago.

LaBeach, on his first trial, jumped 23 feet, 11 3/4 inches to better the previous indoor mark of 23 feet 9 1/2 inches set in 1924 by Lee Farmer of Iowa.

Michigan's defending champions qualified only nine in the six-event preliminaries, but four were in the half-mile indicative of the Wolverines' typical distance strength which will be fully felt in tomorrow's finals. There were no preliminaries in the mile and two-mile, events in which Michigan also is strongly favored.

Minnesota, Purdue and Wisconsin qualified six men each, while Ohio State advanced four and Chicago two. Northwestern was entered but did not qualify a man.

A scheduled entry of 261 launched the two-night meet with trials in the broad jump, 70-yard high and low hurdles, 60-yard dash, 1880-yard run and quarter-mile.

Illinois, favored to displace Michigan as team champion, placed three men in tomorrow night's 60-yard dash semi-finals, including champion Bill Buster, freshman Bill Mathis and Jack Pierce, Michigan failed to qualify a sprinter. Pierce and LaBeach had the best time in the four heats, each clocked in :06.3, a tenth of a second off the league record.

The Illini also placed three men in the 70-yard high hurdles semi-finals, paced by defending champion George Walker, who looted to a :09.1 win in his heat. The best time in the three low timber heats was :08.9 by Bob Cranston of Wisconsin.

Michigan's vaunted distance strength came to the fore in the half-mile as the Wolverines moved four men into the finals. They included Bob Thompson, who had the best dual meet time of the season with 1:58.5 which was topped by Ohio State's William Clifford Trial 1:58.3 tonight.

While LaBeach provided record-breaking punch in the broad jump, Eddieleman of Illinois, best known for his high jumping ability, placed second among the six qualifiers for the finals with a leap of 22 feet 4 1/2 inches.

A Michigan-Illinois scrap loomed in the 440 when Hugh Short of the Wolverines copped his semifinal heat in :50.7 and Herb McKenley of the Illini won the other in :50.5.

In the semi-finals of the 50-yard low hurdles, Walker breezed to a :08.1 win in his heat and Michigan's Elmer Swanson, former champion before he entered the Navy, sailed to an easy triumph in his heat.

Army Will Operate All-Weather Airline

Washington — The first all-weather airline in the history of flying will defy the elements on a coast-to-coast schedule starting this spring or summer, it has been learned here.

Operated by the Army Air Forces, the new airline will fly in all weather conditions as a "proving ground" for equipment developed to make flying safe in adverse weather.

Set up on an experimental basis, the world's first airline designed to end grounding of flights will send flying laboratories on a regular transcontinental schedule. Manned by expert crews and aviation engineers, the planes will test new instruments and serve as an advance weather station for the study of flying in all atmospheric conditions.

No passengers will fly on the new line at first, and the AAF emphasizes that the schedule is being planned as an experimental venture.

The route of the all-weather airline has not been decided, though it is expected that the end points of the cross-country flights will be Washington, D. C., and some airfield in California. Landing fields the Army already has will be used for the line.

Nelson Finds Game In Miami Four-Ball With Jug McSpaden

Miami, Fla., March 8 (AP)—Byron Nelson "found" his golf game today and with partner Harold (Jug) McSpaden the favored duo entered the semi-finals of Miami's $7,500 International Four-Ball tournament. They turned back Lawson Little and Lloyd Mangrum, 4 and 3.

The "little man" Benny Hogan, of Hershey, Pa., turned in a sparkling afternoon round as he and Jimmy Demaret, of Houston, Tex., outstroked the "dark horse" team of Chandler Harper, Portsmouth, Va., and Herman Kaiser, Akron, Ohio, 4 and 3.

TRI-DIRECTIONED STREET

Pearl Street, New York City, runs in three different directions. It touches Broadway twice, but never crosses it. It begins downtown at east side of Broadway, runs eastward and swings off southward in a wild arc that leans west until it once more encounters Broadway in the far downtown district.

Manistique Hub Five and Paper Mill Teams Win

Manistique — The Hub quintet won over the American Legion and the Paper Mill five took the Inland Steel in last night's semi-final playoff of the Manistique city basketball tournament.

The Hubs won by a score of 37 to 34 and the Paper Mill boys took their opponents 46 to 38. Both games were well played. The Hubs played the last three minutes of the game with only four players, having the rest of their players out on fouls.

Final playoff will be tonight with the American Legion and Inland Steel playing the consolation game at 7:30 o'clock and the Hubs and Paper Mill in the final game at 8:45 p. m.

Rookie Tiger Lineup To Play Grapefruit Loop Tilt Saturday

Lakeland, Fla., March 8 (AP)—For the first time since the opening day of their spring training Feb. 20 the Detroit Tigers laid off batting practice here today, concentrating on infield plays and brushing up on signs.

Barney McCosky missed his seventh straight workout because of a pulled hip muscle and Roger (Doc) Cramer stayed in his hotel room nursing a bruised elbow.

Outfielder Ned Harris drilled for the first time since arriving in the Tiger camp and first Baseman Johnny McHale hit town a few minutes too late to practice.

Manager Steve O'Neill named a predominately rookie lineup for the Tigers' second grapefruit league game Saturday at Orlando against Washington's "B" squad.

Anse Moore was listed for third base, John Mueller at shortstop, Joe Wessing at second base, Hal Hirsion in left field and Joe Eranut as the catcher.

O'Neill said that Leslie Mueller, Hal Manders and George Caster would pitch three-inning turns.

Paul (Dizzy) Trout was nominated for a six-inning mound assignment Sunday against Cincinnati at Tampa.

RECOVERY SLOW FOR STOCK LIST

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York, March 8 (AP)—Liquors, motors and "blue chip" specialties today led the stock market on another slow recovery.

Dealings tapered after a fairly active first hour. Top marks running to 2 or more points were shaded in many cases at the close and scattered losers developed.

Wall Street found nothing particularly bullish in the news. Further timid bidding was attributed partly to the belief that the recent sharp relapse in stock market values were cut nearly $4,000,000,000 in February—entitled the list to a substantial technical comeback. Individual earnings prospects and batch of business, still viewed labor disputes as bearish, continuing foreign problems again tended to accentuate caution.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was up .6 of a point at 75. The market broadened a bit, 943 issues registered against yesterday's 896 which were a low mark for the year to date. On the day there were 558 advances and 224 declines.

Revival of optimism came apparently lifted Eastman Kodak 9 1/2 points to 234, Allied Chemical 4 to 197 and Du Pont 3 1/2 to 18.

In front were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Distillers, Graham-Paige, Goodrich, Inland Steel, Oliver Corp., American Telephone, General Public Utilities, Kennecott, Centro, Pasco General Electric, Philip Morris and Texas Eastern.

Losers included Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, Lockheed, S. & S. Roebuck, American Can and Public Service of N. J.

BOND TURNOVER HEAVY

New York, March 8 (AP)—Demand broadened in the bond market today and prices advanced fractions to around 3 1/2.

Sales of $5,550,000 represented the largest turnover in nearly two weeks and compared with $4,250,000 Thursday.

Largest gains were scored in the rail group while industrials and utilities posted fractional advances.

In the U. S. government loan department the ticker tape showed sale of a block of $427,000 in bonds at unchanged prices. The underwriter was firm in both stock market and over-the-counter dealings.

Liquidation developed in foreign dollar issues but the price trend was less certain. Bonds of Brazil declined and Chile advanced.

Corn included Atlantic Coast Line 4 1/2 at 114, Boston & Maine 4 1/2 at 80 1/2, Chicago Great Western 4 1/2 at 90, Rock Island refunding 4 1/2 at 87, Green Bay 4 1/2 at 12 1/2, N. Y. Central refunding 5 1/2 at 10 1/2, and Erie 4 1/2 at 78 at 48 7-8.

A handful of the carriers failed to make the grade. International Great Northern 5 1/2 of 56 "C" dropped 1 3/4 to 13 1/4 and Missouri Pacific 5 1/2 of 77 "F" was shaded a bit at 68.

CHICAGO POTATOES

Chicago, March 8 (AP)—(USDA)—Potatoes, arrivals 1355, on track 202, total U. S. 3,699,835. Colorado Red, No. 1, $1.35; No. 2, $1.25; Minnesota and North Dakota cobs, commercial, $2.20; Bliss triumph, U. S. No. 1, $2.25 to $2.50.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, March 8 (AP)—Grain futures again at ceiling prices buckled sharply under today's impact but the broader general liquidation in several months.

Distant deliveries of hitherto hard-to-get wheat offerings were dumped on the market in the largest volume since ceiling prices were reached in January. Houses with southwestern connections were prominent in the sell-off, offering large lots to a slow, indifferent demand.

Wheat led the decline until the final few minutes of trading when the usually erratic May rice bumped into a wave of selling and skidded from 3 to 4 cents.

December barley dropped below the allowable maximum for the first time in several weeks as transactions broadened to include virtually every futures delivery.

Additional sustained offerings of oats best off a few feeble rallies and all deliveries except May found thin demand.

finished unchanged to 1 3-8 cents a bushel under the previous close, May $1.83 1/2; ceiling; corn unchanged at $1.21 1/2; ceiling; oats unchanged to 1 1/4 off, May $3-cent ceiling; rye unchanged to 4 3-8 lower, May $2.11 1/2; to $2.12; barley unchanged to 3-4 lower, May $1.00; May $1.00.

The disappearing demand for wheat was understood to be the result of reports of recent moisture in the south-west and the statement by Clinton Anderson, secretary of agriculture, that wheat exports to Europe after June 1 would be of little benefit in relieving hunger there.

LOST WEEKEND IS BEST MOVIE

Ray Milland And Joan Crawford Win Top Acting Awards

Hollywood, March 8 (AP)—The "Lost Weekend," the gruesome story of a drunkard, ran away with the major awards in the academy of motion picture arts and sciences 18th annual poll.

To Ray Milland, who portrayed the man in his cups, went the top acting award.

To Paramount went the honor of producing the best picture of 1945. And to Billy Wilder, its director, went the directorial award. Wilder and Charles Brackett shared the award for the best written screen play.

The Oscar for the top feminine performance was won by Joan Crawford, whose abed with influenza, for her role in "Mildred Pierce."

Another veteran, James Dunn, was adjudged the best supporting actor for "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn." Only young Anne Revere saved the day for film-doms newcomers, by garnering the palm for the best supporting performance among actresses in "National Velvet."

Thus did the film which has caused more comment than any other in Hollywood in years receive the highest tribute possible from the people who themselves make movies.

An audience of 2100 of Hollywood's greatest cheered the selection—cheers which were echoed by other thousands jamming Hollywood boulevard outside Grauman's Chinese theater, in the greatest demonstration of pomp the town has seen since before the war.

Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II added to their song-writing laurels with selection of "It Might As Well Be Spring" as the best original song written for films during the year.

Photographic awards went to Harry Stradling for "The Picture of Dorian Gray," in black and white and to Leon Shamroy for "Leave Her to Heaven," in color.

Other writing awards went to Richard Schweizer's "Marie-Louise" as the best original screenplay and to Charles G. Booth's "The House on 92nd Street" as the best original motion picture story.

General Royce May Run For Governor

Detroit—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Ralph Royce arrived here today to "investigate" reports that he will seek the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in the Michigan primaries.

Asked about reports to that effect, Royce, now on terminal leave, replied:

"I've heard the rumors too, and I'm up here to investigate them."

He declined to comment further. However, his name has been mentioned frequently in Democratic circles. E. Cyril Bevan, national committeeman from Michigan, said he had heard the reports but is unable "either to confirm or deny them."

Royce, a veteran of 30 years and two wars in the Army Air Force, said he expects to announce his retirement shortly. He is enroute to Hancock, Mich., for a homecoming reception in his honor March 12.

Garment Factory Gets New Contract

Iron Mountain — At work now on the last of an order of 15,000 dress-jackets for the United States Army, the Security Sportswear Company, east Grand boulevard, was notified today of a new order for 22,000 of the same units, assuring a continued operation for some time to come, according to James Jenista, in charge.

Louis Horvich, co-proprietor of Security Sportswear, is now in the market seeking more material for the renewed contract, and in preparation also for the later change-over to peacetime, civilian production. It is planned, when the Army contract is completed, to resume the production of outdoor wear, principally mackinaws.

About 105 employees are at work, and this figure may be increased, Jenista said.

Briefly Told

Skating Classes Changed — The four o'clock and the six o'clock skating classes have been combined, and will meet together each evening at 6 o'clock, it was announced by Jeanette LeCaptain, ice at the indoor rink has become too soft to permit skating in the afternoon, but freezes sufficiently for evening skating.

Motorist Fined — Francis Gudwiler of Perkins yesterday pleaded guilty in Justice Henry Ranquette's court to a charge of reckless driving and paid a fine of $10 and costs. Escanaba police arrested Gudwiler after he drove his car through a service station driveway at high speed to avoid waiting for the green light at Ludington and Stephenson.

Closes Tuesday — James Anderson, chief clerk of the local Price Control office, 1215 Ludington street, announced yesterday the office will be closed on Tuesday, March 12. The entire office staff will attend a price control clinic to be held at Marquette on that day. The office will be open for business as usual on Wednesday morning.

Hormones Make Old Spuds Stay Young

Rockford—American chemists figuratively have thrown a monkey wrench into the southern potato growers' production machinery by breaking the Dixie farmer's monopoly of the market for "new" potatoes.

Dr. W. C. Dutton of Midland, director of agricultural research for Dow Chemical Co., told a meeting of potato growers here Thursday that a new hormone growth substance has been developed to make old potatoes retain their "newness" until midsummer. This material arrests germination in the tuber. Held in a cool storage, the scientist said the potatoes will not sprout and will retain their harvest-time firmness until July 1 or longer.

"Some persons in the industry believe this treatment will prolong the demand for old potatoes so far into the summer as to seriously restrict the demand for the new crop grown in the south," Dutton reported.

Rapid River

English Bride Honored
Rapid River—A welcome party was held Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Labumbard, honoring their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Keith Labumbard, who recently arrived from England. Games were played during the evening, and lunch was served. Centering the attractive table was a large cake decorated in red, white and blue, inscribed with the words, "Welcome to America." The guest of honor received many gifts.

Hostesses at the party were Mrs. Ray Labumbard and Mrs. Andrew Burnett. Out of town guests were Mrs. Maggie Labumbard, Mrs. Harvey Groleau, Mr. and Mrs. O'Neil Groleau, Mrs. William McCormick, Mrs. Bernice Labumbard, Mrs. Roger Archambeau, all of Gladstone, and Mrs. John Novack of Escanaba.

Prizes in five hundred were won by Mrs. Sandy Short, second, and Mrs. Harvey Groleau, first. Winners in other games were Mrs. Serge Hummon, Mrs. Z. Rushford, Gayle Rushford, Mrs. Roger Archambeau, Mrs. Waldron Johnston, Miss Ira Short, Miss Gertrude Grandchamp, Mrs. R. J. McPheron, Gertrude Groleau, and Mrs. Keith Labumbard.

Mr. and Mrs. Labumbard will leave next week for Wayne, Mich., where they will make their home.

Royal Neighbors Meet
Arbutus Camp, Royal Neighbors, will meet Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the school music room. Mrs. Margaret Jones, district deputy, will be present. Mrs. Christine Ebbeson will be the hostess.

Catholic Ladies' Sodality
An organization meeting of the Catholic ladies of the parish was held Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the parish hall in the Kirch building.

Business matters were discussed and it was decided that meetings would be held on the second Thursday of each month at 8 o'clock in the evening with games to follow the business session and lunch to be served by a committee named by the president.

Winners in the card games on Thursday evening were: bridge, Mrs. Leslie Hamilton, high; Mrs. William Belland, low; five hundred, Mrs. Albert Larson, high. Mrs. Charles Turan, low; five hundred running, Mrs. Homer Papineau, high, Miss Ella Bryant, low.

The first meeting of the men's organization will be held March 17 at 8 o'clock in the evening.

for use in killing potato vines before harvest. Dutton said these materials are expected to improve the cooking qualities and marketability by making it possible for the skins of the tubers to toughen before digging. Immature potatoes bruise easily in handling and often cook dark.

Prof. C. L. Nash, Michigan State College marketing specialist, foresaw less competition from southern crop potatoes this season than in recent years. He reported some export orders for France were being filled from the south because of the freight car shortage.

He said the export deal, particularly shipments into Canada, have greatly benefited Michigan potato growers by adjusting the big national production to the domestic demand.

Michigan Spuds Found Best

In view of acreage reductions made in Michigan since 1937, Nash questioned whether enactment of the Brewster bill, now pending in congress and providing for marketing quotas on the basis of the last five-year average, would be in the best interests of the Wolverine tuber industry. He believed the present marketing agreement act, providing for quotas and diversions in big crop years, offers a sounder potato program.

Michigan growers of quality potatoes were urged to develop their own brand outlets, either individually or co-operatively, and capitalize upon the preferential consumer demand.

Prof. Ernest J. Wheeler, Michigan State college potato specialist, reported he gathered a dozen peck samples in the market for testing by short course students. In grading and cooking qualities, he said Michigan potatoes were unsurpassed by offerings from any state and were found superior to Maine tubers.

The growers were assured that DDT, the new insecticide discovered by war research, is the answer to their prayer for a more effective insect killer. Dr. Herman King, Michigan State College entomologist, said this material not only controls pests, but when applied as a liquid spray has been found to increase yields as much as 25 to 60 bushels per acre. For some unexplained reason, he said dust applications failed to give appreciable yield increases.

A new potato disease, called stem end rot or Z disease, has been found in the state. Dr. Carl Kanore, plant pathologist, announced. Since the organism lives in the soil, he said growers must rely on disease-resistant varieties for control. The new scab and blight resistant Menominee variety was reported to be immune to the disease, while the Russet Rural was said to be highly susceptible.

Beaver Trapping To Open April 1

Michigan's shortened beaver trapping season opens April 1 in counties above the Straits where the animals may be taken legally. Trappers' licenses now are being distributed from the conservation department's regional and district offices.

The 1946 season will be of 10 days' duration and trappers can take a maximum of six beaver. A trapper may take one other legally during the season but a maximum of six animals is all that regulations allow.

Reduced season and take—they were 15 days and eight animals last year, of which two could be other—have been imposed because of the record trapping during 1945 seasons when 3,773 licensed trappers took 15,383 pelts—12,389 in the northern peninsula, 2,994 below the Straits. Conservation officers sealed 280 other skins.

The 1946 trapping seasons in the two peninsulas have been staggered to reduce likelihood that traps will move in either direction across the Straits. Northern peninsula opening date is April 1, continuing through April 10. The season below the Straits opens March 27, ends April 5.

Northern peninsula counties where trapping will be legal are Alger, Baraga, Chippewa, Delta, Dickinson, Gogebic, Houghton, Iron, Keweenaw, Luce, Mackinac, northern Menominee, Ontonagon, and Schoolcraft. Certain special areas in these counties are closed also.

Trappers must present pelts for inspection and affixing of seals by officers within three days following close of seasons in both peninsulas.

Wide divergence of opinion concerning need for additional protection of beaver was expressed prior to conservation commission action in January fixing 1946 season and take limits. Little criticism of 1946 regulations has been expressed.

Germfask

Pvt. Basil Burns who has been overseas for the past two and half years returned home Friday.

Mrs. Maude Burns and son, Basil spent Monday in Manistique. Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Laurence and son, Rudy spent Sunday in Manistique visiting relatives.

Dr. Art San Greto of Hurley, Wis., arrived here Tuesday to spend a few days vacation at the home of Mrs. Hays Shay. Dr. San Greto has just received his discharge from the U. S. Army.

Tuesday Last Day For City Voters To Register Here

The deadline for the registration of new voters in Escanaba is 3 p. m. Tuesday, March 12, at the office of City Clerk Carl E. Anderson, it was announced yesterday. The city clerk's office will be open to the later hour to accommodate those who wish to register.

Changes in address, or the precinct to another, may be changed on the register at any time by notifying the clerk's office.

At the non-partisan spring election to be held April 1, Escanaba voters will elect two members of the city council for four year terms; one justice of the peace for a four year term; and one constable. There are seldom any candidates for constable, and none have qualified for many years.

Terms of Councilmen Henry Wylie and Peter N. Logan expire this spring. Both seek reelection. The term of Justice of the Peace Werner Olson also expires. Olson has not announced whether he will be a candidate.

News From Men In The Service

Rudolph Scheibner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Scheibner, who is now visiting his parents here, 628 S. 18th street, has been promoted to sergeant, it has been learned. Sgt. Scheibner is scheduled to report to Fort Dix, New Jersey on March 16. He has been in service since last fall.

Trenary

Picture Appears

Trenary, Mich.—A picture recently published in the Bay City Times showed CPO Earl B. Quarfoot, who is stationed in the Saginaw Recruiting office, as he inspected a collection of war souvenirs. The automatic weapons, which were brought to this country by souvenir-hunting G.I.s, were turned in for processing and registration by federal agents. CPO Quarfoot, who has been stationed in Saginaw for the past 6 weeks, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Quarfoot of Trenary. He has served in the navy for the past seven years, most of which were spent overseas, and he is a survivor of the Pearl Harbor attack.

Library Adventures

By Arnold Mulder

Look for a revival of creative literature in America in the fairly near future. That is the advice of one diagnostician of things literary in this country.

His reason? An official of the State department had just made the prediction that more Americans will go traveling to foreign shores within the next few years than has ever been the case in the history of this country. Out of that stimulus on the minds of thousands will come an impulse to create. Literature will be the beneficiary.

A pretty theory, but almost fantastically unrealistic. Millions of men and women have traveled far abroad without ever leaving a trace in the creative written word. On the other hand, there are examples aplenty of men and women who hardly so much as ever left the towns in which they were born but whose work became a vital part of the permanent literature of the world.

Henry David Thoreau had a phrase for it, as he had for many other things. He said with an ironical smile that he "had traveled extensively in Concord"—the Massachusetts village in which he was born and in which he died. He did make a few short trips during his lifetime; he even once went outside the borders of his native state. But he was never outside his own country. Yet he added more to the permanent literature of America than any average million Americans who flock to Europe or South America of Africa or Asia.

Stclair Lewis hit the nail on the head in one of his caricature-novels. He has a group of his characters go from Gopher Prairie or Zenith to California for the winter. They indulge in the usual Lewis talk about the broadening effect of travel. Yes, travel is so educational, so enriching for the mind—and all the other cliches with which all travelers always console themselves. But they take Gopher Prairie or Zenith with them; spiritually they live in the native town all the time they are away from it. They think it, they dream it, they talk it, they form a little closed corporation clique, the only interest of whose members is the gossip of the home town.

That happens to travelers more often than most people realize. The so-called international hotels that are patronized by hundreds of thousands of American tourists are about as hermetically sealed against foreign flavors or influences as if they were operated under a law of non-fraternization. Thousands of tourists spend hundreds of millions of dollars in Europe without ever seeing much of anything that is truly European.

They take their own native towns with them and they remain as much as they can among tourists of their own kind whose language they can understand. Genuine travel is far too uncomfortable for them.

Back in our early history Thomas Jefferson had a different idea of foreign travel. While ambassador to France he made trips to Belgium and Holland and Germany and Italy, and he traveled all over France itself. He made it his business to lodge in the homes of peasants, to eat at their tables; he even found out how they cooked their own native dishes. If you are interested, read about it in Claude G. Bowers' recent book, "The Young Jefferson."

No, the revival of European travel is not likely to result in a revival of creative literature in America. In the very nature of things, the traveler seldom strikes root, and rootage is the most indispensable element in the creative process.

Hitler's Family Is Traced Back

Ann Arbor, Mich.—Adolph Hitler's family is traced back to 1435 in one of more than 5,000 books the Clements library at the University of Michigan has received from former students and alumni serving with the armed forces in Europe and the Pacific.

Besides the books, vast quantities of newspapers, Allied and enemy proclamations, propaganda materials and other bits of information about the war have poured into the library in response to requests to alumni and students.

F. Clever Bald, university war historian, is in charge of the collection of material dealing with the war. He expects historians will find all of this will be valuable source material.

The well-printed volume dealing with Hitler's family is entitled "The Ancestor Table of Fuhrer." It contains a picture of Hitler's birthplace in Braunau and a facsimile of an entry of 1497 in the register of property of the Bishopric of Swetli which shows the family name once was Hytler.

Hotel Perket At Bark River Sold

The Hotel Perket at Bark River, operated by Mr. and Mrs. Otto Perket for approximately 25 years, has been sold to Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Farrow, of Flint, it has been announced.

The Hotel Perket is now being operated by Mr. and Mrs. Farrow. The hotel includes 11 guest rooms and dining room.

BRAVERY MARKS HOUSTON STORY

Gallant Ship Fought Jap Navy Alone; Only 60 Men Survived

Washington, (AP)—The story of how the USS Houston, alone and surrounded, fought a Japanese task force was told by the Navy tonight in clearing the mystery of her disappearance March 1, 1942 at the entrance of Sundra Strait.

Action reports from survivors, held secretly in a Japanese prison camp until after the war, revealed that the gallant ship fought five cruisers, 11 destroyers and many enemy ships, the Navy said.

For a time she had the aid of the Australian cruiser Perth, but when the latter was sunk, the Houston fought against the heavy odds for almost an hour.

Several enemy ships were believed sunk in the melee of blazing gunfire.

The last official word from the Houston until after the war was a radiogram that she had made contact with a force of enemy ships near Nicholas Point. Details of the cruiser's last battle and a month-long series of engagements were obtained from the 260 survivors.

The Navy said the survivors heard repeated reports while in prison of the sinking of enemy cruisers and destroyers during the night action of February 28-March 1. Japanese ships fought each other in attempting to locate the Houston.

"The enemy seemed to have experienced great difficulty in singling out the Houston because of the smoke laid down by their own destroyers," Captain Arthur L. Maher, U. S. N., the senior surviving officer, wrote in an action report.

Maher, of (215 South Blakely street) Scranton, Pa., added that "it is the firm belief of all officers that the Japanese shot up several of their own ships."

Those aboard the Houston were unable to see the movements of the Perth until she was observed in a sinking condition about 11:45

p. m. Then alone, and surrounded the Houston stood off the Japanese task force for almost an hour before she too went down at 12:45 p. m.

Capt. Albert H. Brooks, Seattle, Wash., who gave the order to abandon ship, was killed by an enemy salvo before the order was carried out.

Bureau Will Boost Planting Of Trees

Marquette—Favoring renewed operation of forest nurseries, as well as replanting programs by school children, Boy Scouts and civic groups, the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau is using its influence in an effort to reinstate reforestation programs throughout Upper Michigan.

Harvesting of timber of all kinds because of war demands and more recently to meet civilian lumber needs calls for renewal of forest planning programs, Bureau officials believe, "if the fundamental tourist attractions of the Upper Peninsula are to be retained."
